HORNER SAYS HE WILL FIGHT AND EXPECTS TO WIN

Governor Will Open Headquarters In Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Facing open war from the Cook county Democratic machine, which has put up Dr. Herman N. Bundesen as a rival candidate in the primaries, Governor Henry M. Horner came here to open campaign headquarters in the enemy's territory today.

"I'm going out to fight and I expect to win," he told interviewers at his Congress hotel suite.

The governor arrived from Springfield just as rumors blazed up that Mayor Edward J. Kelly and County Chairman Patrick J. Nash planned to dump State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, and would forget him when making up a county ticket.

"Whatever happens, I'll support Tom Courtney," the governor said, "because he's the best state's attorney Cook county ever had, whether Mr. Kelly endorses him or not."

He added:

"I don't think the mayor will be silly enough to leave Courtney off of the ticket."

Most political gossip about the reported plan to sidetrack Courtney, who has won praise for a vigorous campaign against crime, linked the hard feeling to Mayor Kelly's unsuccessful attempt last year to legalize horse race betting.

When Governor Horner vetoed the bill, it was recalled, Courtney commended the governor.

Mayor Kelly declined to dispel the Courtney rumor with a flat answer.

It was generally agreed that to turn the 41-year-old prosecutor out, making possible a Horner-Courtney alliance, would darken the skies for a major political storm.

The reports coincided with others that Gov. Horner planned to put one of Courtney's aides, First Assistant Wilbert Crowley, on a "Horner ticket" as Democratic nominee. But the governor said he has not definitely decided to have such a ticket.

He has decided he will not put up a Cook county slate in opposition to the regular Democrats, he said, explaining:

"Many who are running are friends or mine."

Kills Business Associate And Takes Own Life

Double Killing Takes Place At Meeting Of Directors

Milwaukee, Jan. 16.—(AP)—John Jambor, vice-president of the Jambor Tool and Stamping company, shot and killed his business associate of 20 years late today and then turned the weapon on himself. Harry Pressinger, secretary of the firm, was the victim of the shooting in the company's office.

The double killing which occurred during a directors' meeting on the second floor of the plant here climaxed a dispute of many months between the two.

At the meeting today, the pair became involved in a controversy over a stock transfer, but a half hour after the start of the meeting Pressinger began to yield. As he bent over the safe to get the stock certificates and other documents, Jambor whipped out a .38 calibre pistol, and at close range fired two bullets into Pressinger's head. Then he turned the pistol on himself.

Both were pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Challans and Mr and Mrs. W. S. Challans were Springfield visitors yesterday.

Airplane And Man Sighted By Ship On Bay Of Whales

Officials Believe It May Be Lincoln Ellsworth Missing Flyer

London, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Hopes that Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, missing for nearly two months, are safe in Little America soared tonight with receipt of a message from the rescue ship Discovery II that it had sighted an airplane and a man.

Neither the airplane nor the man seen on the Bay of Whales was identified.

An official of the colonial office said it presumed that the man must of necessity be either Ellsworth or Hollick-Kenyon, his Canadian co-pilot, since "no other persons are known to be in that vicinity."

One word of the wireless message from the captain of the Discovery II, sent into the search jointly by the British and Australian governments, was not decipherable and repetition was ordered.

This would take 12 hours or longer.

The committee in charge of the Discovery II's rescue expedition gave out this statement:

"A message has been received by the Discovery committee from the Master of the Discovery II reporting that the boat arrived safely at the Bay of Whales at 10 p.m. Jan. 15. The message indicates one man was sighted from a plane and also a machine at Little America."

Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon have not been heard from since Nov. 23 when they started on an airplane flight across Antarctic from Dundee Island to the Ross Sea.

Experienced explorers pointed out that they may be unheard from because they may be out of wireless range.

AGREE ON PLAN FOR TEMPORARY FARM PROGRAM

Federal Payments To Farmers May Be Continued

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A definite decision to seek immediate "temporary" farm legislation continuing federal payments to farmers was reached today at a white house conference.

Administration leaders who talked over the problem created by AAA's invalidation for an hour with President Roosevelt said that while details remain to be worked out, the general plan is this:

1. Crop production would be adjusted through retirement of acreage as a soil conservation and erosion prevention measure.

2. Farmers would be reimbursed for land thus retired through federal "rental" payments.

3. Such authorization as is necessary will be sought through amendments to existing laws, rather than new ones.

4. An appropriation of $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 will be asked to finance the program's estimated cost in 1936.

5. An additional appropriation of about $300,000,000 will be requested to reimburse farmers under the invalidated 1936 adjustment contracts.

6. A "permanent" program might be sought later this session or deferred until next year.

7. Provisions of the AAA untouched by the supreme court's decision would be strengthened and more fully utilized.

Speaker Byrns told newsmen after leaving the white house that the necessity of economic farm legislation "is so immediate that it has got to be done at the earliest possible moment, and there won't be time for permanent legislation now."

Announce Debate Schedule Here For J. H. S. Contestants

First Tournament Of Year To Be Held At Rock Island Jan. 31

One of the most pretentious schedules ever undertaken by J. H. S. debaters has been announced for the present Crimson arguing aggregation. Following the opening debate of the season last Monday with Waverly, Coach Harold Gibson commenced a stiff session of preparation for the first tournament of the year, at Rock Island January 31 and February 1. Here the local speakers will be thrown with the strongest teams of Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. This is the first year that J.H.S. will be represented at this meet, which is sponsored by Augustana College. There will be one more practice debate before that time, both Jacksonville teams going to Pittsfield for a double meet with the debaters of that school.

The season as planned at the present time is as follows:

(Two teams mean both affirmative and negative.)

Wednesday, Jan. 29—Two teams at Pittsfield.

Friday and Saturday, Jan. 31 and Feb. 1—Two teams and four alternates to Augustana tournament at Rock Island.

Feb. 3—Waverly's two teams here.

Feb. 4—Two teams at Franklin.

Feb. 7—Affirmative of Macomb College Academy here.

Feb. 11 — Winchester affirmative here.

Feb. 14.—Pittsfield's two teams here.

Feb. 18—J. H. S. affirmative to Winchester.

Feb. 21—Two teams at Pekin.

March 7—J. H. S. teams to East Alton and East St. Louis.

March 13—Two Pekin teams here.

March 21 — Waverly Invitational tournament.

March 27 and 28—Sectional tournament at Macomb.

April 9, 10, 11—State division of National Forensic League meet at Lincoln.

These, with the possible addition of a tourney for the boys at Fulton, Missouri, are one for the girls at MacMurray College, comprise the meets which the local debaters may attend whether they win or not. If they take first or second at the Macomb Sectional, they will compete in the state finals at Urbana on April 23, 24, 25. Should they attend this tourney and win either first or second, or first in the state N.F.L. tourney at Lincoln, they will go to Oklahome City for the National Tournament during the first week in May. However, the debaters are not counting on the last too much, it being very unusual for one school to qualify a team for the nationals three consecutive years. But that won't stop them from trying their best to equal the record of the last two years, anyway.

BANK ROBBER IS KILLED AT LAWRENCEVILLE

Another Bandit Is Wounded And One Escapes

Lawrenceville, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A hurriedly summoned posse of citizens today frustrated an attempted holdup of the Allendale National bank, 12 miles south of here, killing one bandit and seriously wounding another.

Sheriff M. E. Hastings said the wounded man, shot in his arm and leg, gave his name as Freeman Griggs, Bridgeport, Ill. His brother, Dale Griggs, died of a bullet wound through the back. A third bandit, named by the sheriff as Johnny Bolles, Bridgeport farmer, escaped.

Crowding ten customers into a corner, the bandits, armed with pistols an da sawed off shotgun, forced the bank cashier to stuff between $700 and $800 in cash into a currency bag.

H. A. Fox, bank president, leaped through a rear window while the holdup was in progress and quickly rounded up a dozen citizens.

They surrounded the bank entrance and exchanged fire with the bandits as they emerged. S. H. Price, Allendale grocer, was wounded slightly in the knee.

One of the bandits shot back through the bank door as the crowd inside rushed to the street, but missed. The two then were quickly felled by vigilante bullets.

Sheriff Hastings said the Griggs brothers had staged the holdup while the third man, who escaped, waited in a parked motor car.

Bruno Hauptmann Saved From Electric Chair; Is Given 30-Day Reprieve

By Samuel G. Blackman
Associated Press Staff Writer

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 16—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted Lindbergh baby killer, was saved temporarily from the electric chair late today by a 30-day reprieve from Governor Harold G. Hoffman.

It came only 29 hours before the hour of execution.

"I am granting a reprieve," the governor said, "for divers reasons which I do not care to disclose at this time."

The reprieve, though only for 30-days, actually assures Hauptmann of at least eight more weeks of life and perhaps three months due to the fact it will be necessary to re-sentence him.

Governor Hoffman acted soon after the United States supreme court, in a one-sentence decision by Chief Justice Hughes, denied Hauptmann's appeal for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution.

There will be only the one reprieve," "unless the evidence should warrant another," the governor said. If Hauptmann is to be finally saved it must be through the presentation of sufficient new evidence to warrant Justice Thos. W. Trenchard, who sat at Flemington, granting a request for a new trial, or for a new plea for clemency to the state pardons court.

The governor announced his decision in his office shortly after talking with Mrs. Anna Hauptmann who presumably had called upon him to plead for her husband's life.

There was no formal statement by the governor, who spoke extemporaneously. He said:

"The attorney general and I have been in conference on this matter, and I have decided to announce a reprieve of 30 days.

"We have agreed that this will not be challenged.

"It is my intention to grant only this one reprieve. There will be no further reprieve.

"I am giving this reprieve for divers reasons which I do not care to disclose at this time. It is an act of executive clemency, and there can be no extension of the reprieve unless the evidence should warrant it.

"No formal request was made to me to take this action.

"There is plenty of precedent for the action I am taking."

"I will send a formal notice of the reprieve to Col. Mark O. Kimberling (principal keeper of the state prison) within the next half hour."

A delay in preparation of the reprieve order, however, caused the governor to leave his office before signing it. It will be signed early tomorrow, it was said.

Hauptmann received word of his new lease on life from two of his attorneys—C. Lloyd Fisher and Frederick A. Pope.

Pope quoted the condemned man as saying "thank you," as his face lighted up, and he asserted as was "sure something would happen" to prevent the execution.

The "grape-vine" carried the news quickly throughout the big prison.

The inmates lifted their voices in shouts:

"Hauptmann! Hauptman!"

"Reprieve! Reprieve! Reprieve!"

They beat upon the cell doors and the noise spread swiftly from cell block to cell block.

Finally it diminished and faded out.

Developments in Hauptmann Case at Glance by A. P.

By The Associated Press

Bruno Hauptmann gets new lease on life with 30-day reprieve by Governor Hoffman. It will be only one unless evidence warrants extension, he says.

Advised of the reprieve by counsel, condemned man "smiles" and displays renewed confidence.

Prison inmates shout and beat cell doors as news of reprieve reaches them.

U. S. supreme court in Washington turns down application for a writ of habeas corpus and stay of execution shortly before governor acts.

Reports of "confession" by new figure in case persist despite Hoffman's statement he knows nothing about it.

Harold C. Keyes, former defense investigator, quoted as saying he knows of evidence that would bring Hauptmann's acquittal at another trial.

Amandus Hochmuth, who testified at Flemington trial he saw Hauptmann near Lindbergh estate the day of kidnaping, asks attorney general for tickets to execution.

The wife of the president in Washington said she would not intervene in Hauptmann's behalf although she had many appeals.

CITIES CAN IMPROVE PUBLIC HOSPITALS

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Cities of less than 100,000 population were authorized today to incur bonded indebtedness and negotiate federal loans to reconstruct and improve public hospitals.

Governor Horner signed two emergency bills passed by the first special session to permit this.

Two other emergency measures were signed by the governor, one deeding state owned land in Chicago to the University of Chicago as a site for a dental and medical unit and another authorizing non-high school districts in counties of 500,000 population and over to issue bands to take care of unpaid tuition and other claims against the districts.

JURY DEADLOCKED

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A deadlocked jury tonight ended the trial of Nelson Eveland, 24, Granite City, Ill., charged with robbery in the holdup of C. R. Flint, Decatur business man.

The jury deliberated for six hours before it was dismissed by Judge C. Y. Miller in Macon county circuit court. Roy Burns, arrested with Eveland in Pekin, Ill., was sentenced to prison last spring following his conviction in the robbery.

Eveland was held in the county jail here tonight for Pekin authorities where he will be taken to face trial on another robbery charge.

TRUCK DRIVER KILLED

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Harold Miller, 35, died this afternoon in a hospital here an hour after his truck and a truck driven by Glen Oden, St. Louis, collided on Route 48 southwest of here. Oden, who escaped injury in the crash, was held on a charge of manslaughter. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

Contributions Are Received By Hauptmanns

Money Is Being Used To Pay Legal Efforts In German's Behalf

By Pat McGrady
Associated Press Staff Writer

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 15—(AP)—Payment for legal efforts in behalf of Bruno Richard Hauptmann is being made, presumably, from contributions sent by sympathizers.

Such contributions, informed quarters today said, have totaled $43,000. One of Hauptmann's lawyers admitted they exceeded $20,000.

How much is left is undisclosed. Contributions are represented by the defense as having virtually stopped. Mrs. Hauptmann receives a small sum occasionally.

Hauptmann's life is insured with his wife as beneficiary. One report says the policy is for $10,000.

At one time Mrs. Hauptmann was allowed $40 a week from the defense fund. She obviously has some income from a newspaper, a representative of which accompanies her constantly and pays her traveling and hotel expenses.

Most of the lawyers who have represented Hauptmann are said to have lost money from the case.

Edward J. Reilly, who succeeded Pawcett, once said he received $6,000 fees, but expended $16,000.

C. Lloyd Fisher, Reilly's successor as chief counsel, has had charge of defense funds and disbursements. He is silent as to their present status.

Egbert Rosecrans, associate counsel, is understood to have said that his fees have not been as large as his expenses.

Frederick A. Pope, another associate counsel, is supposed to be in the same situation.

AGED SLAYER OF GRACE BUDD IS ELECTROCUTED

One-Legged Negro Also Pays Extreme Penalty

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Albert H. Fish, 66-year-old slayer of Grace Budd, and John Smith, 41 one-legged negro, were electrocuted tonight at Sing Sing prison.

Smith, former Harlem restaurant operator, who was convicted of shooting James Wilson during a quarrel, went to the chair first. He entered the death chambers at 11 p. m. and was dead at 11:04.

Fish was strapped in the chair at 11:06 and was pronounced dead three minutes later.

He was convicted of strangling and hacking to death the 10-year-old girl eight years ago in a lonely Westchester cottage.

The electrode was attached to the left leg of Smith, who had no right leg. It was switched, however, before Fish entered the death chamber and was attached to his right leg as is customary.

They were executed by Robert Elliott, who has electrocuted seven men in seven days. Elliott had already been notified to prepare for the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann tomorrow night when Governor Hoffman of New Jersey announced a reprieve would be granted.

Fish, old and stoop shouldered, shuffled down the corridor and went to his death without uttering a word. He wore a blue shirt and black trousers.

As he entered the death chamber, the Rev. Anthony Petersen, Protestant chaplain, was reading from the Bible.

Smith made his last walk with the aid of a crutch. He gazed calmly at the witnesses as he sat down without a word. Dr. Petersen read from the 23rd Psalm as the hood was adjusted.

Both men had spent their last hours with Dr. Petersen listening to him read the Bible.

Both had given up hope as the hours of the execution approached. Fish ate little of his special chicken dinner, but Smith ate a hearty meal.

Shortly before he was taken from his cell, Fish asserted, Warden Lewis E. Lawes related, that he loved children and must have been out of his mind when he killed the Budd girl.

Fish's daughter and two sons visited him during the day.

May Dump Oats And Manure Into Mine At Johnson City

Effort Being Made To Stem Rising Flood Waters In Big Shaft

Johnston City, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—With falling temperatures threatening to halt bailing operations, officials tonight considered a plan to dump tons of oats and barnyard manure into Old Ben Mine No. 16 in an attempt to stem rising flood waters.

The $3,000,000 coal mine—chief income source of the 6,000 inhabitants here—has been closed for six weeks by seepage from adjacent abandoned workings.

Mine officials pointed out oats and manure swell when wet and may plug up apertures where the water is rushing through broken concrete seals.

They said it would take two or three days to drill holes into which the material could be poured effectively beneath the damaged seals.

Meanwhile three giant steel buckets, swung from elevator cages, continued bailing out water at the rate of 4,000 gallons a minute from the main shaft.

With the weather only a few degrees above the freezing mark, a further drop would turn the mine tipple above the main shaft into a 100-foot icicle and abruptly terminate bailing efforts.

WPA engineers conferred with mine officials over a proposed $75,000 loan and said they were hopeful it could be arranged. The money would be used to build two huge pipes through the broken seals. Workmen said the water could then be mechanically pumped up from the pipes.

Now president of the Berwyn Bar Association, Lund was formerly president of the suburb's chamber of commerce. He was nominated for congress in 1934.

HORNER SAYS HE WILL FIGHT AND EXPECTS TO WIN

Governor Will Open Headquarters In Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Facing open war from the Cook county Democratic machine, which has put up Dr. Herman N. Bundesen as a rival candidate in the primaries, Governor Henry M. Horner came here to open campaign headquarters in the enemy's territory today.

"I'm going out to fight and I expect to win," he told interviewers at his Congress hotel suite.

The governor arrived from Springfield just as rumors blazed up that Mayor Edward J. Kelly and County Chairman Patrick J. Nash planned to dump State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, and would forget him when making up a county ticket.

"Whatever happens, I'll support Tom Courtney," the governor said, "because he's the best state's attorney Cook county ever had, whether Mr. Kelly endorses him or not."

He added:

"I don't think the mayor will be silly enough to leave Courtney off of the ticket."

Most political gossip about the reported plan to sidetrack Courtney, who has won praise for a vigorous campaign against crime, linked the hard feeling to Mayor Kelly's unsuccessful attempt last year to legalize horse race betting.

When Governor Horner vetoed the bill, it was recalled, Courtney commended the governor.

Mayor Kelly declined to dispel the Courtney rumor with a flat answer.

It was generally agreed that to turn the 41-year-old prosecutor out, making possible a Horner-Courtney alliance, would darken the skies for a major political storm.

The reports coincided with others that Gov. Horner planned to put one of Courtney's aides, First Assistant Wilbert Crowley, on a "Horner ticket" as lieutenant governor. But the governor said he has not definitely decided to have such a ticket.

He has decided he will not put up a Cook county slate in opposition to the regular Democrats, he said, explaining:

"Many who are running are friends of mine."

Double Killing Takes Place At Meeting Of Directors

Milwaukee, Jan. 16.—(AP)—John Jambor, vice-president of the Jambor Tool and Stamping company, shot and killed his business associate of 20 years late today, and then turned the weapon on himself. Harry Pressinger, secretary of the firm, was the victim of the shooting in the company's office.

The double killing which occurred during a directors' meeting on the second floor of the plant here climaxed a dispute of many months between the two.

At the meeting today, the pair became involved in a controversy over a stock transfer, but a half hour after the start of the meeting Pressinger began to yield. As he bent over the safe to get the stock certificates and other documents, Jambor whipped out a .38 calibre pistol, and at close range fired two bullets into Pressinger's head. Then he turned the pistol on himself.

Both were pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Challans and Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Challans were Springfield visitors yesterday.

Airplane And Man Sighted By Ship On Bay Of Whales

Officials Believe It May Be Lincoln Ellsworth Missing Flyer

London, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Hopes that Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, missing for nearly two months, are safe in Little America soared tonight with receipt of a message from the rescue ship Discovery II that it had sighted an airplane and a man.

Neither the airplane nor the man, seen on the Bay of Whales, was identified.

An official of the colonial office said it presumed that the man must of necessity be either Ellsworth or Hollicy-Kenyon, his Canadian co-pilot, since "no other persons are known to be in that vicinity."

One word of the wireless message from the captain of the Discovery II, sent into the search jointly by the British and Australian governments, was not decipherable and repetition was ordered.

This would take 12 hours or longer.

The committee in charge of the Discovery II's rescue expedition gave out this statement

"A message has been received by the Discovery committee from the Master of the Discovery II reporting that the boat arrived safely at the Bay of Whales at 10 p.m. Jan. 15. The message indicates one man was sighted from a plane and also a machine at Little America."

Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon have not been heard from since Nov. 23 when they started on an airplane flight across Antarctic from Dundee Island to the Ross Sea.

Experienced explorers pointed out that they may be unheard from because they may be out of wireless range.

AGREE ON PLAN FOR TEMPORARY FARM PROGRAM

Federal Payments To Farmers May Be Continued

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A definite decision to seek immediate "temporary" farm legislation continuing federal payments to farmers was reached today at a white house conference.

Administration leaders who talked over the problem created by AAA's invalidation for an hour with President Roosevelt said that while details remain to be worked out, the general plan is this:

1. Crop production would be adjusted through retirement of acreage as a soil conservation and erosion prevention measure.

2. Farmers would be reimbursed for land thus retired through federal "rental" payments.

3. Such authorization as is necessary will be sought through amendments to existing laws, rather than new ones.

4. An appropriation of $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 will be asked to finance the program's estimated cost in 1936.

5. An additional appropriation of about $300,000,000 will be requested to reimburse farmers under the invalidated 1936 adjustment contracts.

6. A "permanent" program might be sought later this session or deferred until next year.

7. Provisions of the AAA untouched by the supreme court's decision would be strengthened and more fully utilized.

Speaker Byrns told newsmen after leaving the white house that the necessity of economic farm legislation "is so immediate that it has got to be done at the earliest possible moment, and there won't be time for permanent legislation now."

Announce Debate Schedule Here For J. H. S. Contestants

First Tournament Of Year To Be Held At Rock Island Jan. 31

One of the most pretentious schedules ever undertaken by J. H. S. debaters has been announced for the present Crimson arguing aggregation. Following the opening debate of the season last Monday with Waverly, Coach Harold Gibson commenced a stiff session of preparation for the first tournament of the year, at Rock Island January 31 and February 1. Here the local speakers will be thrown with the strongest teams of Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. This is the first year that J.H.S. will be represented at this meet, which is sponsored by Augustana College. There will be one more practice debate before that time, both Jacksonville teams going to Pittsfield for a double meet with the debaters of that school.

The season as planned at the present time is as follows:

(Two teams mean both affirmative and negative.)

Wednesday, Jan. 29.—Two teams at Pittsfield.

Friday and Saturday, Jan. 31 and Feb. 1—Two teams and four alternates to Augustana tournament at Rock Island.

Feb. 3—Waverly's two teams here.

Feb. 4—Two teams at Franklin.

Feb. 7.—Affirmative of Macomb College Academy here.

Feb. 11 — Winchester affirmative here.

Feb. 14.—Pittsfield's two teams here.

Feb. 18—J. H. S. affirmative to Winchester.

Feb. 21—Two teams at Pekin.

March 7—J. H. S. teams to East Alton and East St. Louis.

March 13—Two Pekin teams here.

March 21 — Waverly Invitational tournament.

March 27 and 28—Sectional tournament at Macomb.

April 9, 10, 11—State division of National Forensic League meet at Lincoln.

These, with the possible addition of a tourney for the boys at Fulton, Missouri, are one for the girls at MacMurray College, comprise the meets which the local debaters may attend whether they win or not. If they take first or second at the Macomb Sectional, they will compete in the state finals at Urbana on April 23, 24, 25. Should they attend this tourney and win either first or second, or first in the state N.F.L. tourney at Lincoln, they will go to Oklahome City for the National Tournament during the first week in May. However, the debaters are not counting on the last too much, it being very unusual for one school to qualify a team for the nationals three consecutive years. But that won't stop them from trying their best to equal the record of the last two years, anyway.

BANK ROBBER IS KILLED AT LAWRENCEVILLE

Another Bandit Is Wounded And One Escapes

Lawrenceville, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A hurriedly summoned posse of citizens today frustrated an attempted holdup of the Allendale National bank, 12 miles south of here, killing one bandit and seriously wounding another.

Sheriff M. E. Hastings said the wounded man, shot in his arm and leg, gave his name as Freeman Griggs, Bridgeport, Ill. His brother, Dale Griggs, died of a bullet wound through the back. A third bandit, named by the sheriff as Johnny Bolles, Bridgeport farmer, escaped.

Crowding ten customers into a corner, the bandits, armed with pistols an da sawed off shotgun, forced the bank cashier to stuff between $700 and $800 in cash into a currency bag.

H. A. Fox, bank president, leaped through a rear window while the holdup was in progress and quickly rounded up a dozen citizens.

They surrounded the bank entrance and exchanged fire with the bandits as they emerged. S. H. Price, Allendale grocer, was wounded slightly in the knee.

One of the bandits shot back through the bank door as the crowd inside rushed to the street, but missed. The two then were quickly felled by vigilante bullets.

Sheriff Hastings said the Griggs brothers had staged the holdup while the third man, who escaped, waited in a parked motor car.

Bruno Hauptmann Saved From Electric Chair; Is Given 30-Day Reprieve

By Samuel G. Blackman
Associated Press Staff Writer

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 16—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted Lindbergh baby killer, was saved temporarily from the electric chair late today by a 30-day reprieve from Governor Harold G. Hoffman.

It came only 29 hours before the hour of execution.

"I am granting a reprieve," the governor said, "for divers reasons which I do not care to disclose at this time."

The reprieve, though only for 30-days, actually assures Hauptmann of at least eight more weeks of life and perhaps three months due to the fact it will be necessary to re-sentence him.

Governor Hoffman acted soon after the United States supreme court, in a one-sentence decision by Chief Justice Hughes, denied Hauptmann's appeal for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution.

There will be only the one reprieve," "unless the evidence should warrant another," the governor said. If Hauptmann is to be finally saved it must be through the presentation of sufficient new evidence to warrant Justice Thos. W. Trenchard, who sat at Flemington, granting a request for a new trial, or for a new plea for clemency to the state pardons court.

The governor announced his decision in his office shortly after talking with Mrs. Anna Hauptmann who presumably had called upon him to plead for her husband's life.

There was no formal statement by the governor, who spoke extemporaneously. He said:

"The attorney general and I have been in conference on this matter, and I have decided to announce a reprieve of 30 days.

"We have agreed that this will not be challenged

"It is my intention to grant only this one reprieve. There will be no further reprieve.

"I am giving this reprieve for divers reasons which I do not care to disclose at this time. It is an act of executive clemency, and there can be no extension of the reprieve unless the evidence should warrant it.

"No formal request was made to me to take this action.

"There is plenty of precedent for the action I am taking."

"I will send a formal notice of the reprieve to Col. Mark O. Kimberling (principal keeper of the state prison) within the next half hour."

A delay in preparation of the reprieve order, however, caused the governor to leave his office before signing it. It will be signed early tomorrow, it was said.

Hauptmann received word of his new lease on life from two of his attorneys—C. Lloyd Fisher and Frederick A. Pope.

Pope quoted the condemned man as saying "thank you," as his face lighted up, and he asserted as was "sure something would happen" to prevent the execution.

The "grape-vine" carried the news quickly throughout the big prison.

"Hauptmann! Hauptman!"

"Reprieve! Reprieve! Reprieve!"

They beat upon the cell doors and the noise spread swiftly from cell block to cell block.

Developments in Hauptmann Case at Glance by A. P.

By The Associated Press

Bruno Hauptmann gets new lease on life with 30-day reprieve by Governor Hoffman. It will be only one unless evidence warrants extension, he says.

Advised of the reprieve by counsel, condemned man "smiles' and displays renewed confidence.

Prison inmates shout and beat cell doors as news of reprieve reaches them.

U. S. supreme court in Washington turns down application for a writ of habeas corpus and stay of execution shortly before governor acts.

Reports of "confession" by new figure in case persist despite Hoffman's statement he knows nothing about it.

Harold C. Keyes, former defense investigator, quoted as saying he knows of evidence that would bring Hauptmann's acquittal at another trial.

Amandus Hochmuth, who testified at Flemington trial he saw Hauptmann near Lindbergh estate the day of kidnaping, asks attorney general for tickets to execution.

The wife of the president in Washington said she would not intervene in Hauptmann's behalf although she had many appeals.

CITIES CAN IMPROVE PUBLIC HOSPITALS

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Cities of less than 100,000 population were authorized today to incur bonded indebtedness and negotiate federal loans to reconstruct and improve public hospitals.

Governor Horner signed two emergency bills passed by the first special session to permit this.

Two other emergency measures were signed by the governor, one deeding state owned land in Chicago to the University of Chicago as a site for a dental and medical unit and another authorizing non-high school districts in counties of 500,000 population and over to issue bands to take care of unpaid tuition and other claims against the districts.

JURY DEADLOCKED

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A deadlocked jury tonight ended the trial of Nelson Eveland, 24, Granite City, Ill., charged with robbery in the holdup of C. R. Flint, Decatur businses man.

The jury deliberated for six hours before it was dismissed by Judge C. Y. Miller in Macon county circuit court. Roy Burns, arrested with Eveland in Pekin, Ill., was sentenced to prison last spring following his conviction in the robbery.

Eveland was held in the county jail here tonight for Pekin authorities where he will be taken to face trial on another robbery charge.

TRUCK DRIVER KILLED

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Harold Miller, 35, died this afternoon in a hospital here an hour after his truck and a truck driven by Glen Oden, St. Louis, collided on Route 48 southwest of here. Oden, who escaped injury in the crash, was held on a charge of manslaughter. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

Contributions Are Received By Hauptmanns

Money Is Being Used To Pay Legal Efforts In German's Behalf

Associated Press Staff Writer

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 16—(AP)—Payment for legal efforts in behalf of Bruno Richard Hauptmann is being made, presumably, from contributions sent by sympathizers.

Such contributions, informed quarters today said, have totaled $43,000. One of Hauptmann's lawyers admitted they exceeded $20,000.

How much is left is undisclosed. Contributions are represented by the defense as having virtually stopped. Mrs. Hauptmann receives a small sum occasionally.

Hauptmann's life is insured with his wife as beneficiary. One report says the policy is for $10,000.

At one time Mrs. Hauptmann was allowed $40 a week from the defense fund. She obviously has some income from a newspaper, a representative of which accompanies her constantly and pays her traveling and hotel expenses.

Most of the lawyers who have represented Hauptmann are said to have lost money from the case.

Edward J. Reilly, who succeeded Fawcett, once said he received $6,000 fees, but expended $16,000.

C. Lloyd Fisher, Reilly's successor as chief counsel, has had charge of defense funds and disbursements. He is silent as to their present status.

Egbert Rosecrans, associate counsel, is understood to have said that his fees have not been as large as his expenses.

Frederick A. Pope, another associate counsel, is supposed to be in the same situation.

AGED SLAYER OF GRACE BUDD IS ELECTROCUTED

One-Legged Negro Also Pays Extreme Penalty

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Albert H. Fish, 66-year-old slayer of Grace Budd, and John Smith, 41, one-legged negro, were electrocuted tonight at Sing Sing prison.

Smith, former Harlem restaurant operator, who was convicted of shooting James Wilson during a quarrel, went to the chair first. He entered the death chambers at 11 p. m. and was dead at 11:04.

Fish was strapped in the chair at 11:06 and was pronounced dead three minutes later.

He was convicted of strangling and hacking to death the 10-year-old girl eight years ago in a lonely Westchester cottage.

The electrode was attached to the left leg of Smith, who had no right leg. It was switched, however, before Fish entered the death chamber and was attached to his right leg as is customary.

They were executed by Robert Elliott, who has electrocuted seven men in seven days. Elliott had already been notified to prepare for the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann tomorrow night when Governor Hoffman of New Jersey announced a reprieve would be granted.

Fish, old and stoop shouldered, shuffled down the corridor and went to his death without uttering a word. He wore a blue shirt and black trousers.

As he entered the death chamber, the Rev. Anthony Petersen, Protestant chaplain, was reading from the Bible.

Smith made his last walk with the aid of a crutch. He gazed calmly at the witnesses as he sat down without a word. Dr. Petersen read from the 23rd Psalm as the hood was adjusted.

Both men had spent their last hours with Dr. Petersen listening to him read the Bible.

Both had given up hope as the hours of the execution approached. Fish ate little of his special chicken dinner, but Smith ate a hearty meal.

Shortly before he was taken from his cell, Fish asserted, Warden Lewis E. Lawes related, that he loved children and must have been out of his mind when he killed the Budd girl.

Fish's daughter and two sons visited him during the day.

Effort Being Made To Stem Rising Flood Waters In Big Shaft

Johnston City, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—With falling temperatures threatening to halt bailing operations, officials tonight considered a plan to dump tons of oats and barnyard manure into Old Ben Mine No. 18 in an attempt to stem rising flood waters.

The $3,000,000 coal mine—chief income source of the 6,000 inhabitants here—has been closed for six weeks by seepage from adjacent abandoned workings.

Mine officials pointed out oats and manure swell when wet and may plug up apertures where the water is rushing through broken concrete seals.

They said it would take two or three days to drill holes into which the material could be poured effectively beneath the damaged seals.

Meanwhile three giant steel buckets, swung from elevator cages, continued bailing out water at the rate of 4,000 gallons a minute from the main shaft.

With the weather only a few degrees above the freezing mark, a further drop would turn the mine tipple above the main shaft into a 100-foot icicle and abruptly terminate bailing efforts.

WPA engineers conferred with mine officials over a proposed $75,000 loan and said they were hopeful it could be arranged. The money would be used to build two huge pipes through the broken seals. Workmen said the water could then be mechanically pumped up from the pipes.

Hauptmann's Reprieve

The strain of the Hauptmann case has been temporarily relieved by the granting of a thirty-day reprieve by Governor Hoffman. Now if there is any evidence worth considering, those who are seeking to save the convicted Lindbergh baby kidnaper from the chair, should get busy and present it.

Governor Hoffman has given his word that there will be no future reprieve. Attorney General Willentz has evidently agreed to the one just granted, he is willing to be fair. The rumors claims, and scraps of evidence lurking about should now be gathered up, sifted and run to earth. A full month of grace has been given, in order that everybody who is interested in the case may put forward whatever has been held back that may be of value.

Doubtless the greatest revelations should come from the prisoner himself. Certainly Hauptmann has not told all he knows about the strange crime, and he should not wait until his last hour if he intends to "talk." Now is his chance to implicate others, if there are others involved.

It is hoped that the coming month will see this case cleared up. For nearly four years it has been before the American public, far too long a time for such a fearful crime to go unpunished.

The Price of Africa

Somewhere in a remote part of England, utterly secluded from the world, is the actress Edwina Booth, who rose to fame in the picture "Trader Horn." She is paying the price of a sojourn in Africa, a victim of a tropical disease that defies diagnosis. The blazing African sun wrecked her nerves and drove her into seclusion.

Mussolini's soldiers are finding that Africa exacts a fearful toll for her conquest. Reports come from Austria that hundreds of Italian soldiers have deserted and have taken refuge in the Austrian Tyrol, rather than go to Africa to fight the Ethiopians.

The armies of the invader are confronted now by the "little rainy season," and have been compelled to turn back, as the land of the enemy is turned into a sea of mud. Death and disease lurk everywhere for the white man who dares try to take the lands of the Lion of Judah. Tropical disease baffles the white scientists and takes its toll of young men who would have made good Italian citizens at home. Mussolini may find the price of Africa too high.

Starting Too Young

Bennie Bartlett, nine-year-old movie actor, is a versatile lad. By the time he was seven years old, he had completed fifteen song hits. He led a professional dance band at the age of four. Just now he's a feature actor on the screen.

Bennie's song hits have been used in radio broadcasts. If he continues to write songs, he should have a complete repertoire by the time he is old enough to conduct his own radio orchestra. No doubt he will be able to produce any number of All-Bartlett programs.

But will Bennie last that long? Child prodigies have too often failed to return to the limelight as grownup entertainers. The commercial value of child artists continues only a few years, especially in the movies, unless they were able to stage a comeback later in life.

But with song-writing it should be different. As this lad grows to maturity, he should be able to write better songs. He may also develop his talent as an orchestra leader. If he can hold the pace, he need not worry about his future, and he won't need an old age pension—if he's careful.

BIND OVER FOUR IN CHICKEN THEFT CASE

Four men accused of stealing chickens at the farm of Miss Mae Spaulding, northwest of Jacksonville, were bound over to await grand jury action yesterday in the court of Justice C. S. Smith. Bonds were fixed at $1,000.

Henry Edwards and Jordan W. Turner asked for a preliminary hearing and this was held by Justice Smith. The other defendants, Napoleon Leslie and Joe Bush, waived preliminary examination.

The defendants were returned to jail after the hearing.

Editor Forum
Dear Sir:

The writer of the foregoing statement has refrained from discussing the present light and power issue; however, the statement of the "Tax Payers' Committee" regarding the Princeton Municipal plant is so utterly ridiculous, that it deserves a reply.

I am personally acquainted with the history of the Princeton plant, and also the people who built and operate the plant, and the only thing that can be said against it is that an unavoidable mechanical accident deprived the city of light and power for a few hours. I wonder if there is any one now living in Jacksonville, Ill., who can recall when the town brook overflowed and flooded a privately owned light and power plant in Jacksonville, Ill. Not hours but days were the people of Jacksonville deprived of light and power. A storm might wreck the transmission lines and local plant of the Ill. Power & Light Corp. and they could not be reasonably censured for failing to supply power and light to Jacksonville. Such occurrences are unavoidable, and for a committee to use such conditions to influence public opinion regarding a governmental condition, at once condemns the issue which they are advocating.

In 1913 when Jacksonville had a residential rate of 13c net when the use of electric current in homes was practically a luxury and in addition the municipally owned plant was a mechanical wreck and the city was forced to resort to the privately owned plant for electric current, a desperate and almost successful effort was made to place the pumping of water and street lighting in the hands of the privately owned power interests at a rate that would have confiscated almost the entire municipal tax levy. As proof of these statements I submit the city books and records. In defense of the position of the privately owned utility; was cited by the utility and their friends and committees, the protective and adjusting powers of the newly created Illinois Public Utility Commission. The late Dr. E. F. Baker and the writer filed a suit before this Commission asking for better rates and better service for Jacksonville. For months we were before this Commission, hearings in Springfield and Chicago at great expense to petitioners, long winded defense of this exorbitant rate by high priced utility lawyers and experts, and many times censure and ridicule from their fellow citizens of those who at their own expense were trying to help their fellow citizens and home community. After months of hearing before the Commission a decision in favor of the petitioners lowering very markedly the rates in Jacksonville, by the Commission, and the local utility refused to accept their decision—and exhausted physically and financially, the people accepted the rate suggested by the company. And strange to note, there are those who were certain that rates and conditions of 1913 were correct, and are just as certain conditions in 1936 are correct and are just as active in 1936 as they were in 1913.

Practically every important rate reduction in Jacksonville has followed a campaign for Municipal Ownership.

I invite the Citizens' Committee to pay a visit to Hannibal, Mo., and study the effects of thirty years of Municipal Ownership. Contrast the rates, financial and business conditions of Hannibal in all lines with our own city. This is near at hand and would be a proper and profitable field for investigation and study for some of our educational institutions who are entrusted with the development of our future citizens.

Very respectfully,
Edward Bowe.

People's Editor,
Journal-Courier Co.,
Jacksonville, Illinois.

There has been a good deal of discussion pro and con about a municipal electric plant for Jacksonville. I have read the advertisements and statements and listened to the speakers and I believe that we are "barking up the wrong tree."

If electric rates are too high in Jacksonville—and I confess that I do not know whether they are or not—surely we have a means of reducing them without spending more than $400,000 to do it. Surely it couldn't cost more than a few thousands to present the proper information to the State Commerce Commission and if the rates are unreasonable get them cut down.

I do not agree either with the statement that this "plant will not cost the city one penny." I know who will pay for a municipal plant. The money to pay off the bonds, to pay interest and to pay salaries will all be included in the rate we pay for electric service. Maybe we won't be able to see it, but it will have to be there just the same.

Suppose municipal rates are fixed at half what they are now? And suppose they do not bring in enough to pay all the charges, interest, etc. The bond-holders could take our plant away from us and operate it themselves and charge us whatever necessary. Then we would have two private companies and would be right back before the Commerce Commission where we should have gone in the first place.

I think that if a public utility misbehaves it should be spanked, and the law provides a means of making the utilities toe the mark. If, as is charged, our rates are too high; let our city officials do something about it, in a legal, orderly manner. That is their plain duty.

But let's not involve ourselves in a political mess and spend $420,000 that isn't necessary. This City hasn't so much money that we can afford to throw any away.

Politics is the curse of municipal ownership everywhere. Politics appoints inefficient employes because they stand in politically. Politics resorts to unethical bookkeeping to show profits where profits do not exist. Politics spends money right and left and the people pay and pay and pay.

I say let us keep the electric light service out of politics. There are ways and means of getting our electric rates reduced fairly and squarely without getting into debt and throwing our light service into politics.

Jacksonville has had a street lighting system for 40 years. It has never been properly maintained. No proper reserve has ever been kept. When the plant has needed new equipment, it has always been financed through new bond issues. There is not a dollar available to renew worn out machinery or the distribution system.

Jacksonville has had a water plant for 70 years. Rates are the highest in the state. Rates are far more than in private companies. Rates are two and a half times Springfield. Why not compare Jacksonville's water rates with Springfield's if the electric rates should be compared?

Unless we consider the past we cannot understand the present nor foresee the future. I shall vote "NO" on next Tuesday.

Hauptmann's Reprieve

The strain of the Hautpmann case has been temporarily relieved by the granting of a thirty-day reprieve by Governor Hoffman. Now if there is any evidence worth considering, those who are seeking to save the convicted Lindbergh baby kidnaper from the chair, should get busy and present it.

Governor Hoffman has given his word that there will be no future reprieve. Attorney General Willentz has evidently agreed to the one just granted; he is willing to be fair. The rumors, claims, and scraps of evidence lurking about should now be gathered up, sifted and run to earth. A full month of grace has been given, in order that everybody who is interested in the case may put forward whatever has been held back that may be of value.

Doubtless the greatest revelations should come from the prisoner himself. Certainly Hauptmann has not told all he knows about the strange crime, and he should not wait until his last hour if he intends to "talk." Now is his chance to implicate others, if there are others involved.

Since receiving that telegram from the boss yesterday, we've been looking into this "Ah Wilderness" situation . . . We find the picture was adapted from Eugene O'Neill's comedy drama of American home life, that George M. Cohan climaxed his career as star of the original stage play, that Will Rogers starred in the West Coast stage production and was to have been starred in the film, that all reviews bear out the boss' estimate, and that the cast includes Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Eric Linden, Aline McMahon and Cecilia Parker, and that the picture is booked to open next Sunday at the FOX ILLINOIS.

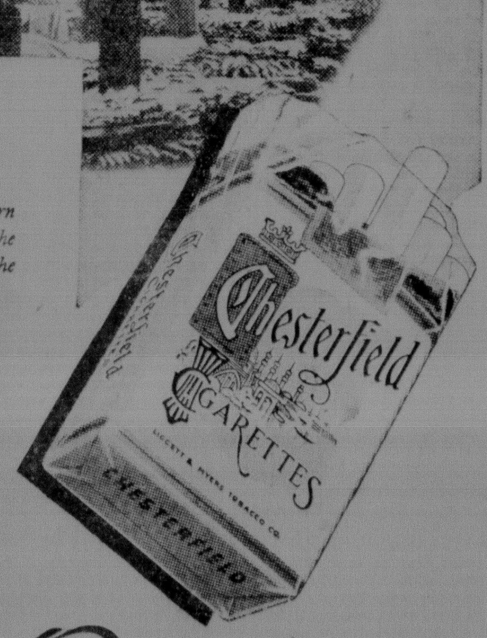
A DAILY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

In 1621—

This picture shows how the Jamestown Colonists exchanged tobacco for brides. They paid "120 pounds of the best leaf" for transportation of each future wife who came to the New World from England.

In 1936—

And here is a picture of the modern auction warehouse of today where the same type of leaf tobacco is sold on the open market to the highest bidder.



There is no substitute for mild, ripe tobacco to make a good cigarette—and there never will be

. . . and that is the kind we buy for Chesterfield Cigarettes.

In the tobacco buying season Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. buyers will be found at 75 markets where the Bright type of tobacco is sold, and 46 markets where Burley and other types of tobacco are sold.

All these tobacco men are trained in the tobacco business, and are schooled in the Liggett & Myers tradition that only mild, ripe tobacco is good enough for Chesterfield Cigarettes.

Red Cross Chapter Receives Appeal To Aid Ethiopian Fund

American Society Asked For Cash; Field Units Sent From Other Nations

An appeal for funds to aid the Ethiopian Red Cross has come to the Morgan county chapter from Dr. Cary T Grayson, chairman of the American Red Cross. The letter states that the Italian Red Cross continues in no need of assistance and has not asked for help from the International organization. But the Ethiopian society, which is caring for the wounded of its country in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict is in need of help.

The appeal states that people in American communities should be given an opportunity to contribute funds. The American society will send money, as it is too far away to put Red Cross ambulance and hospital units in the field.

A portion of the letter from Dr. Grayson follows:

"Two representatives of the International committee of the Red Cross are now in Ethiopia and they report that the Ethiopian Red Cross is in great need of aid from other Red Cross societies. The Ethiopian Red Cross to the extent of its means is organizing and placing simple ambulance units in the field, and the representatives of the International Red Cross report that from various sources in or near Ethiopia personnel can be secured for reasonable expense; that supplies can be secured more effectively by making funds available for use there than by shipment from this country; and that at the moment the greatest need of the Ethiopian Red Cross is for funds.

"The Red Cross societies of Great Britain, Norway, Sweden and the Netherlands are sending medical units to Ethiopia. The International committee of the Red Cross feels the national societies nearest to the scene of operations can furnish supplies and personnel and that the societies at a greater assistance can at this time render most valuable assistance in the form of funds.

"It is apparent that the most effective action to be taken by the American Red Cross is the prompt collection of such contributions as the American people desire to make and the dispatch of such sums through the International committee. Chapters should, therefore, see that all persons in their communities are advised of this situation and given every opportunity to make their contributions."

Release $10,885 To Continue Relief in Morgan To Jan. 31

Funds Will Provide For 800 Families; Seek More For WPA Jobs

Mrs. Tillie Kelly, Morgan county relief administrator, received a telegram yesterday morning from IERC headquarters stating that the sum of $10,885 has been released for use in Morgan county to continue relief activities until Jan. 31, Mrs. Kelly stated that the additional funds will be made to go as far as possible.

A bulletin was also received yesterday instructing the county relief station to make available all possible employables for WPA projects. There are a few who have had part-time employment, who are eligible for WPA jobs under the Nov. 1 deadline. If it were possible to employ those who have obtained relief since that date, the burden in this county would be cut about 150 families.

The present case load is 800 families. The funds released for the last two weeks of January will care for this load insofar as possible.

P. C. Kinnett, of Alexander, was a business visitor in the city yesterday.

Prosecution is Engaged in Getting Testimony; May Demand Death

Pittsfield—Testimony for the prosecution was introduced yesterday in the trial of William Hook, New Salem farmer, charged with murdering his brother, John Hook. The jury was secured Wednesday afternoon after a large venire was examined.

The state charges Hook killed his brother Feb. 2, 1935 by striking him on the head with a bar of iron. The death penalty may be demanded in closing arguments, as each juror was questioned as to his views on capital punishment.

Court attaches said the trial probably will last the remainder of the week.

Forequarter of Lamb Is Fine for Economy Dishes

By MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

Maybe you prefer lamb chops, but the forequarters which consist of the front legs and shoulders are tasty, satisfactory and economical.

The forequarter meat is naturally tougher than that of the hindquarter, and in tough meats the connective tissue is the part that must receive special attention if the cut is to be palatable and tender when it comes to the table.

By separating the meat, bone and fat, each one can be used to advantage. The meat can be put through the food chopper ready to make into attractive chopped steaks. The bone may be used for delicious broths, and the fat can be chopped and tried out for frying—pan-frying, of course.

Variety in dishes made with the forequarter of lamb often may be had by using suitable sauces and accompaniments, such as rice and spaghetti.

The small family will find two pounds of lamb from the forequarter sufficient for its needs. The larger family, of course, will need more in proportion to its size.

Suggestions for Preparations

When the meat is left in one piece it can be boiled, roasted, braised with vegetables or cooked and pressed and served cold.

Cut in pieces, Irish stew, fricassee of lamb, casserole of lamb and lamb curry are sure to please.

Or when the meat and bone are separated before cooking, several pleasing dishes can be concocted. The pieces of clear meat can be pounded thin—Frenched. These are broiled and served with currant jelly. Instead of flattening the fillets, each can be wrapped with a strip of bacon, held with a wooden toothpick and broiled or baked in a hot oven.

If the meat is chopped, it can be made into cakes like Hamburg steaks and broiled or fried.

The bone is very good boiled to make broth or stock. If the meat, with vegetables and rice, is added to this broth, a nourishing dish known as Scotch broth is made.

A delectable meat loaf is made with chopped lamb combined with cracker crumbs, milk and eggs. Serve with creamed peas, it vies with lamb chops for popularity.

Since the nutritive value of this inexpensive meat is quite as great as that of the choicer, more expensive cuts, it seems well worth while to study ways to use it. The flavor is just as delicious in the shoulder as in the leg.

Fricassee of Lamb

Three pounds shoulder of lamb, salt, pepper, flour, minced parsley, 2 cups gravy (made with stock in which lamb was cooked).

Cut meat in pieces suitable for serving. Put in kettle, cover with boiling water and simmer until tender. It's a good idea to cook the lamb the day before you want to serve it. Remove meat from stock. Cool. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Brown quickly on all sides in fat in a hot frying pan. Arrange on a platter and pour the sauce over the meat. Garnish with minced parsley and triangles of toast. The English call these toast points sippets and it does sound inviting, doesn't it?

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Stewed dried apricots, cereal, cream, baked French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Oyster stew, stuffed celery, tapioca cream pudding, grape juice.

DINNER: Fricassee of lamb, mashed potatoes, beets in orange sauce, salad of cabbage in mint jelly, peach pudding, milk, coffee.

No New Taxes Asked As Yet To Fill Up Gaps in U. S. Budget

AAA Decision and Bonus To Add Heavily to Demands Upon Treasury

Washington—(AP)—Despite the gaping holes torn in the Roosevelt budget there was little disposition on Capitol Hill today to provide new taxes at this session unless the administration demands them.

Within ten days, developments have arisen that threaten to knock the Roosevelt fiscal program from $2,500,000,000 to $3,500,000,000 out of kilter. The AAA decision by the supreme court left huge gaps in the revenue and congressional plans for paying the bonus would add to the expense. More damage to the president's estimates may be forthcoming later.

But administration leaders on the hill remain non-commital over the prospect of new taxes, or go further and forecast there will be none except to finance a new farm plan. Opposition forces are critical, but are not yet demanding new taxes.

Determination of the tax question depends to a large extent upon administration plans for a new farm program. It is generally believed by members of congress that this will involve new taxes, and that they may to some extent cover up the hole in the budget created by the supreme court's AAA decision.

Administration chieftains have taken the position the bonus will not require new taxes. They have worked out a system for paying the veterans which they contend will slow down the demands on the treasury.

Other legislators say that regardless of that, the bonus bill, if it passes in its present form, will add more than $2,200,000,000 to the public debt.

Here is how the budget situation has changed in 10 days:

President Roosevelt estimated a deficit of $3,234,000,000 for the current fiscal year and $1,098,000,000 for next year, which would bring the public debt to $31,351,000,000 by July 1, 1937. These figures did not include any new funds for relief during the next fiscal year.

Truck and Wagon Damaged in Crash

Raymond Beadles Sustains Cut on Head and Earl Rugh is Injured

Two men were slightly injured early yesterday morning when a truck owned by the Artz Beverage Company of this city collided with a wagon on a road west of Manchester. Raymond Beadles, 821 North Main street, the truck driver, received a cut on his forehead, and Earl Rugh, who was driving a team, was cut and bruised.

The accident occurred about 6 o'clock while a sleet was falling. Rugh's wagon was demolished, and the truck was considerably damaged in front and on one side.

Beadles assisted Rugh to get to a physician's office in Murrayville where he received medical attention.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

Turmoil Reigns in Supreme Court . . . Bitterness Said to Be Cropping Out Among Nine Justices, Far Apart on New Deal Cases . . . Opinions Give Clear Indications of Wide Split . . . It's Not First Time Dissension Has Torn Tribunal.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington—The Grade A inside dope is that members of the U. S. Supreme Court are more wrought up emotionally than in many decades.

The "calm judicial temperament" has taken wing and report is that feeling between conservative and liberal justices has become relatively as bitter as that between New Dealers and anti-New Dealers in the arena politics.

On the one side are at least five justices who appear to be grimly and in some cases hysterically convinced that they are the last bulwark against the barbarian hordes and that if they can only preserve the country until a conservative again occupies the White House their lives will not have been spent in vain.

On the other end are the three liberals, Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo, who are said to be infuriated by the willingness of other justices to rule on a basis of policy or expediency rather than law.

Brandeis and Stone are understood to have been especially angry during the court's secret discussion of the AAA case because they felt Hughes voted with Roberts, McReynolds, Vandevanter, Sutherland and Butler only because he felt that a 5-to-4 decision would diminish public confidence in the court.

Hughes "in the Middle"

Hughes appears actually to be standing around somewhere in the middle. Early in this term it was noticed that he had become older and grayer and seemed to have lost control of the situation insofar as his ability to avoid 5-to-4 decisions was concerned.

In the railroad retirement case at the end of the last term, he lost his temper and in a slashing dissent against a 5-to-4 opinion read by Justice Roberts charged "unwarranted limitation" such as would "make impossible the practical exercise of power."

In the last three important liberal-conservative splits, however, Hughes has gone along with the conservative majority, conspicuously refraining from writing the opinions.

Using dignified supreme court language, the minority in its dissents has been accusing the majority of usurpation of power and disregard for the Constitution.

That's the only way, according to supreme court experts, that you can interpret Cardozo's sarcastic line—"the process of psychoanalysis has spread to unaccustomed fields"—in reference to the majority's reasoning in the Constantine federal liquor tax case.

Or Stone's in another three-man dissent on the Vermont income tax case, which attacked the majority's assumptions of the prerogative of a "super-legislature."

Or, finally, Stone's assertion in the AAA dissent that a majority contention "hardly rises to the dignity of argument," coupled with the tart accusation of "tortured construction of the Constitution," the warning that the majority was endangering "our institutions," and the charge that the majority refused to admit that the "Constitution may mean what it says."

Each Side Fears Chaos

The conservative side has been equally bitter and emotional. Remember Sutherland's cry last year in the gold cases, "The Constitution is gone!"

Roberts, meanwhile, has left many gasping by his majority opinions in the railroad and AAA cases, which went far beyond usual supreme court custom by seeming to say, in effect: "Not only can Congress not do what it wants to do in this manner, but it can't do it in any other way, either!"

Strangely enough, as in the political field, each side seems to think that the other is heading the country for chaos and probably wrecking the court. The minority especially seems to believe that the majority, by a reactionary policy which can hardly be maintained if Roosevelt is re-elected and has a chance to make appointments, is threatening the court's existence. As in national politics, the liberal-conservative fight spills over party lines. McReynolds is a Democrat; Stone is a Republican. They oppose each other hotly.

Bitterness in Other Days

Lest you shiver in your boots at the thought of the "nine old men" going hysterical on us, it can be said that there have been previous instances where one group or another of justices has thought the majority was tearing everything down.

When the majority might have ducked the issue in the Dred Scott case, but insisted on ruling as a matter of political or economic policy, there was similar bitterness. And in Chief Justice White's time some of the justices were so sore at one another that they wouldn't even attend the regular conferences at which the justices debate their opinions.

Also the court continues to preserve its august dignity in the face of an awed world.

Thus, when a Mr. Potter was appointed liaison agent between the court and correspondents—not a "press agent," mind you—and news photographers sought a picture of him recently, they were informed:

LEGUME INCREASE ADDS TO NEED FOR SOIL INOCULATIONS

Urbana, Ill.—With soybean acreage in 1935 more than double that of 1933 in Illinois and the acreage of many other legumes on the increase, soil inoculation looms as a necessity and one of the cheapest crop insurances that can be obtained, it is stated by O. H. Sears, associate chief in soil biology at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Soils in practically all parts of the state need inoculation before being planted to legumes for the first time, Sears declared. Even where legumes have been grown before, inoculation is economical insurance, since the cost is little and the gains large, he added.

An example of the benefits of soil inoculation is contained in the report of R. V. Watson, Grundy county farm adviser. The only soybeans that produced creditable crops in Grundy county this year were those planted on fields inoculated within the past two years, Watson said.

In choosing inoculation cultures, it is best to buy from a dependable firm and to secure cultures which are to be used with water. These inoculants stick to the seed better than those mixed dry. They include the agar or jelly and humus cultures. Care should be taken not to use too much water particularly on soybeans, as this will cause the seed coat to slip and also may clog the drill. About one-half pint of water to each bushel of soybeans is a good average in most cases, Sears said.

Farmers buying cultures for next spring's inoculation should avoid spending money for "cure all" types of cultures which are now offered for sale in some places. These inoculants are claimed by the makers not only to inoculate all crops, but also to correct acid conditions and supply needed fertilizing elements. Samples tested at the college proved practically worthless. They not only failed to produce nodules on the roots of legumes, but also showed little value for their other recommended purposes.

For the farmer who cares to check on the value of the culture used, a check plot may be used so that formation of nodules as well as vigor of growth can be compared on the inoculated and non-inoculated soils.

Among those Murrayville residents calling in this city yesterday was H. R. Covey.

AAA Decision and Bonus To Add Heavily to Demands Upon Treasury

Washington—(AP)—Despite the gaping holes torn in the Roosevelt budget there was little disposition on Capitol Hill today to provide new taxes at this session unless the administration demands them.

Within ten days, developments have arisen that threaten to knock the Roosevelt fiscal program from $2,500,000,000 to $3,500,000,000 out of kilter. The AAA decision by the supreme court left huge gaps in the revenue and congressional plans for paying the bonus would add to the expense. More damage to the president's estimates may be forthcoming later.

But administration leaders on the hill remain non-commital over the prospect of new taxes, or go further and forecast there will be none except to finance a new farm plan. Opposition forces are critical, but are not yet demanding new taxes.

Determination of the tax question depends to a large extent upon administration plans for a new farm program. It is generally believed by members of congress that this will involve new taxes, and that they may to some extent cover up the hole in the budget created by the supreme court's AAA decision.

Administration chieftains have taken the position the bonus will not require new taxes. They have worked out a system for paying the veterans which they contend will slow down the demands on the treasury.

Other legislators say that regardless of that, the bonus bill, if it passes in its present form, will add more than $2,200,000,000 to the public debt.

Here is how the budget situation has changed in 10 days:

President Roosevelt estimated a deficit of $3,234,000,000 for the current fiscal year and $1,098,000,000 for next year, which would bring the public debt to $31,351,000,000 by July 1, 1937. These figures did not include any new funds for relief during the next fiscal year.

Truck and Wagon Damaged in Crash

Raymond Beadles Sustains Cut on Head and Earl Rugh is Injured

Two men were slightly injured early yesterday morning when a truck owned by the Artz Beverage Company of this city collided with a wagon on a road west of Manchester. Raymond Beadles, 821 North Main street, the truck driver, received a cut on his forehead, and Earl Rugh, who was driving a team, was cut and bruised.

The accident occurred about 6 o'clock while a sleet was falling. Rugh's wagon was demolished, and the truck was considerably damaged in front and on one side.

Beadles assisted Rugh to get to a physician's office in Murrayville where he received medical attention.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

Turmoil Reigns in Supreme Court . . . Bitterness Said to Be Cropping Out Among Nine Justices, Far Apart on New Deal Cases . . . Opinions Give Clear Indications of Wide Split . . . It's Not First Time Dissension Has Torn Tribunal.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington—The Grade A inside dope is that members of the U. S. Supreme Court are more wrought up emotionally than in many decades.

The "calm judicial temperament" has taken wing and report is that feeling between conservative and liberal justices has become relatively as bitter as that between New Dealers and anti-New Dealers in the arena politics.

On the one side are at least five justices who appear to be grimly and in some cases hysterically convinced that they are the last bulwark against the barbarian hordes and that if they can only preserve the country until a conservative again occupies the White House their lives will not have been spent in vain.

On the other end are the three liberals, Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo, who are said to be infuriated by the willingness of other justices to rule on a basis of policy or expediency rather than law.

Brandeis and Stone are understood to have been especially angry during the court's secret discussion of the AAA case because they felt Hughes voted with Roberts, McReynolds, Vandevanter, Sutherland and Butler only because he felt that a 5-to-4 decision would diminish public confidence in the court.

Hughes "in the Middle"

Hughes appears actually to be standing around somewhere in the middle. Early in this term it was noticed that he had become older and grayer and seemed to have lost control of the situation insofar as his ability to avoid 5-to-4 decisions was concerned.

In the railroad retirement case at the end of the last term, he lost his temper and in a slashing dissent against a 5-to-4 opinion read by Justice Roberts charged "unwarranted limitation" such as would "make impossible the practical exercise of power."

In the last three important liberal-conservative splits, however, Hughes has gone along with the conservative majority, conspicuously refraining from writing the opinions.

Using dignified supreme court language, the minority in its dissents has been accusing the majority of usurpation of power and disregard for the Constitution.

That's the only way, according to supreme court experts, that you can interpret Cardozo's sarcastic line—"the process of psychoanalysis has spread to unaccustomed fields"—in reference to the majority's reasoning in the Constantine federal liquor tax case.

Or Stone's in another three-man dissent on the Vermont income tax case, which attacked the majority's assumptions of the prerogative of a "super-legislature."

Or, finally, Stone's assertion in the AAA dissent that a majority contention "hardly rises to the dignity of argument," coupled with the tart accusation of "tortured construction of the Constitution," the warning that the majority was endangering "our institutions," and the charge that the majority refused to admit that the Constitution may mean what it says."

Each Side Fears Chaos

The conservative side has been equally bitter and emotional. Remember Sutherland's cry last year in the gold cases, "The Constitution is gone!"

Roberts, meanwhile, has left many gasping by his majority opinions in the railroad and AAA cases, which went far beyond usual supreme court custom by seeming to say, in effect: "Not only can Congress not do what it wants to do in this manner, but it can't do it in any other way, either!"

Strangely enough, as in the political field, each side seems to think that the other is heading the country for chaos and probably wrecking the court. The minority especially seems to believe that the majority, by a reactionary policy which can hardly be maintained if Roosevelt is re-elected and has a chance to make appointments, is threatening the court's existence. As in national politics, the liberal-conservative fight spills over party lines. McReynolds is a Democrat; Stone is a Republican. They oppose each other hotly.

Bitterness in Other Days

Lest you shiver in your boots at the thought of the "nine old men" going hysterical on us, it can be said that there have been previous instances where one group or another of justices has thought the majority was tearing everything down.

When the majority might have ducked the issue in the Dred Scott case, but insisted on ruling as a matter of political or economic policy, there was similar bitterness. And in Chief Justice White's time some of the justices were so sore at one another that they wouldn't even attend the regular conferences at which the justices debate their opinions.

Also the court continues to preserve its august dignity in the face of an awed world.

Thus, when a Mr. Potter was appointed liaison agent between the court and correspondents—not a "press agent," mind you—and news photographers sought a picture of him recently, they were informed:

"That wouldn't be in keeping with the dignity of the court."

THESE FACTS ABOUT BRAN HAVE BEEN PROVED BY TESTS

Supplies Gently Acting "Bulk" to Aid Regular Habits

Now and then, in talking with your friends, the subject of bran has come up. So that real facts might replace unsupported opinions, the Kellogg Company has aided for some years research in leading nutrition laboratories.

Studies made on a group of healthy women showed that two tablespoonfuls of bran daily continued to relieve constipation* over a period of months. How different from cathartics—where dosage often must be increased.

Another series of tests on men indicated that, with some people, the "bulk" in bran was much more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Further tests showed that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provided vitamin B and iron as well as "bulk." This "bulk" absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the system — the right way to correct constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity. Either as a cereal, with milk or cream, or in cooked dishes. It is a natural laxative food. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Firemen's Ball At Jerseyville Feb. 4

Annual Event to Show City's Appreciation For Work of Its Fire Fighters

Jerseyville—The twenty-fourth annual ball of the Jerseyville Fire Department will be given on Tuesday evening, February 4th in the National Ball Room.

The affair begins at 8:30 o'clock and the music will be furnished by the Music Masters.

This ball is an outstanding event each year in Jerseyville as it furnishes a means of showing the apreciation of the community for the efficient services rendered by the members of the local department who serve without salary.

The personnel of the local Fire Department is as follows: Frank Bayer, chief; Harry Blish, assistant chief and secretary; William F. Hanley, treasurer; Edward Bray, William McFain, Bert O. Bell, Ray Brickey and Edward Hanson. Commissioner Carl E. Thatcher is in charge of the department.

Payment of WPA Checks

Because of some confusion which has been experienced in the distribution of WPA checks in Jersey county, notice has been given that the local Works Progress Administration office is not authorized to give checks to anyone other than the project supervisor who will in turn distribute them to the workmen on their particular project.

In the past there has been some delay in issuing the checks but orders have been received to send in time reports on special delivery, and pay checks are promised within seventy-two hours.

THESE FACTS ABOUT BRAN HAVE BEEN PROVED BY TESTS

Supplies Gently Acting "Bulk" to Aid Regular Habits

Now and then, in talking with your friends, the subject of bran has come up. So that real facts might replace unsupported opinions, the Kellogg Company has aided for some years research in leading nutrition laboratories.

Studies made on a group of healthy women showed that two tablespoonfuls of bran daily continued to relieve constipation* over a period of months. How different from cathartics—where dosage often must be increased.

Another series of tests on men indicated that, with some people, the "bulk" in bran was much more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Further tests showed that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provided vitamin B and iron as well as "bulk." This "bulk" absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the system — the right way to correct constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity. Either as a cereal, with milk or cream, or in cooked dishes. It is a natural laxative food. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ACCEPTED AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSN. Committee on Foods

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk."

Firemen's Ball At Jerseyville Feb. 4

Annual Event to Show City's Appreciation For Work of Its Fire Fighters

Jerseyville—The twenty-fourth annual ball of the Jerseyville Fire Department will be given on Tuesday evening, February 4th in the National Ball Room.

The affair begins at 8:30 o'clock and the music will be furnished by the Music Masters.

This ball is an outstanding event each year in Jerseyville as it furnishes a means of showing the apreciation of the community for the efficient services rendered by the members of the local department who serve without salary.

The personnel of the local Fire Department is as follows: Frank Bayer, chief; Harry Blish, assistant chief and secretary; William F. Hanley, treasurer; Edward Bray, William McFain, Bert O. Bell, Ray Brickey and Edward Hanson. Commissioner Carl E. Thatcher is in charge of the department.

Payment of WPA Checks

Because of some confusion which has been experienced in the distribution of WPA checks in Jersey county, notice has been given that the local Works Progress Administration office is not authorized to give checks to anyone other than the project supervisor who will in turn distribute them to the workmen on their particular project.

In the past there has been some delay in issuing the checks but orders have been received to send in time reports on special delivery, and pay checks are promised within seventy-two hours.

The STRANGE CASE of JULIA CRAIG

by Nard Jones
Copyright NEA 1936

CHAPTER I

HER arms pressing two bundles close against her slender waist, and one small capable hand searching hurriedly for the key in her bag, Julia Craig stood before the door of the little apartment which she shared with Amy Sanders.

When at last she was successful in managing both the key and the two bulky bundles and had entered the apartment without mishap, Amy looked at her from the security of the room's one davenport. As dark as Julia was blond, Amy had reached home a few moments before, slipped into her red negligee and settled herself comfortably with a magazine.

Julia glared in mock anger. "Didn't you hear me trying to get in?"

"Sure," said Amy cheerfully. "But I knew you had a key."

"You knew it was my day to bring the groceries, too," said Julia from the kitchenet where she was disposing of the bundles on the diminutive tile drain-board. "And you knew I'd be loaded down like a truck horse."

Through the open doorway, Amy surveyed Julia's figure enviously. "You're a long way from being a truck horse, darling. Why don't you wear that black dress all the time? You're certainly a swell dish in it."

Julia returned to the room. Taking her smart little hat carefully by its front brim she lifted it from her blond head and tossed it on the table. Then she sank into the big chair beside the davenport. Now that she was inside the apartment, now that her working day was finished, she lost at once the alert and efficient manner which characterized Julia in the office and on the street. She had been tired the moment she left the office—the moment work had ceased and she could let herself down. But she hadn't shown it until now.

AMY gazed at her critically. "Bad day at the office, Julia?"

"No worse than most, I suppose," Julia said. "But the firm has been given a big case that involves a lot of money and some future business. Everybody down there seems pitched up to the screaming point."

"Well," Amy sighed, "at least it's exciting to work for lawyers. You should try to sell the latest models to these old hens for eight hours a day."

"I'd think it would be interesting, Amy. You get a chance to see in the flesh some of these women I can see only through their pictures in the society section."

Amy snorted. "Personally, I'd rather look at them in pictures. I waited on Mrs. Hamilton Uzzon today. Ever hear of her?"

"Of course," Julia said. "She had a tea for the Garden Club last week. There was a whole page of pictures in the paper, and—"

"Yeah," said Amy irreverently. "Listen—the Uzzon bill hasn't been paid at our shop for a year and a half. Mrs. Hamilton Uzzon couldn't buy an extra button in our place unless she paid cash, and all the girls have instructions to that effect. Mrs. Uzzon knows it, too—but she comes into the shop with her friends and tries on dresses by the hour. Then when it's all over she says, 'Really, I think your gowns are getting awfully nondescript.'"

Julia laughed. "I think that's delightful!"

"Well, if you had to listen to it you wouldn't have such a nice sense of humor," Amy mentioned. "And we all have to be nice to her because her husband may pay the bill any minute—and because she has influence."

"That's the whole story," said Julia reflectively. "You have to be nice to her, because she has influence. And she has influence because she's had money and may have it again."

AT her roommate's cynical tone, Amy's dark eyes widened. "That may be," she said stoutly. "But I wouldn't trade places with Mrs. Hamilton Uzzon for all her tea parties and pictures in the roto-gravure section. She's the most unhappy person in the world. I can tell. And I'll bet her husband is a close second."

"Just the same," Julia answered, "I'd take a chance on her unhappiness."

Amy tossed the magazine to the foot of the davenport and brought her slippered feet to the floor. "What's got into you, Julia? You've been moping for weeks now. You used to be the life of the party when we'd have the gang in. Last time they were here you wouldn't even sing a song for us. And every body knows you can make a song sound all right, even when the tune isn't so good and the words are absolutely senseless."

"What do you mean, 'everybody' knows it?" enquired Julia, getting up restlessly. "Maybe the gang, as you call them, knows it. But nobody else does."

"What do you care about that?" Julia turned suddenly, her eyes gleaming. "I care a lot, Amy. I'm sick and tired of working for Woodford and Brooks."

"It's a good job, Julia. You get a lot more money than I do. A lot more than most girls working downtown."

"What if I do? Where does it get me?" Julia paced to the window and looked out. Then she said slowly: "I'm 20, Amy."

"I'm 25," Amy said, "And I'm still having a lot of fun."

Julia turned. "Maybe you are," she said cruelly, "but it's not the kind of fun I want, Amy. I don't want to be George Woodford's secretary until I'm old. I'll—I'll be like Miss Jamieson down at the office. She's been there for 22 years."

"Maybe she likes it," said Amy. "Every girl isn't as ambitious as you are, Julia."

"Aren't they?" argued Julia. "I'm not so sure. I think they are—until life gets them down."

AMY SANDERS stared at the carpet a moment. Then: "Julia . . . you said Peter Kemp wanted to marry you. Why don't you take him up?"

"Because I don't want to," said Julia quickly.

"Because you don't love him?" asked Amy quietly. "He's a nice boy—and it's plain he loves you."

"I haven't thought about love, Amy. But I've thought about some things that are a darned sight more important. Peter Kemp doesn't get any more money at Woodford and Brooks' than I do. They use him to brief their cases—then Mr Woodford or Mr Brooks goes into court and make the brilliant showing. I don't want to marry a man like that, Amy."

"You're being pretty cold-blooded about it," Amy told her. "When you really fall in love you'll change your tune. Then you'll find that money isn't so important."

"Suppose I did marry Peter Kemp," Julia answered. "We'd have a little apartment at first—like this one. Then we'd probably have children, and have to move into a little rented house where there'd be a lot of hard work and not much else."

Amy didn't reply at once. She reached for a cigaret from the pack on the little table. When she had lighted it and blown a pillar of smoke toward the ceiling, she said, "Well . . . I didn't mean you have to take Peter. But in a job like yours you have a chance to meet a lot of likely men."

"Oh, yes," said Julia. "We have a chance to meet men. But—" she faced her roommate squarely. "Amy the average girl working in an office is stuck any way you look at it. We work for wages that most men wouldn't think of accepting; and we do plenty of work, too. Lots of times we correct the mistakes of men who get three and four times the salary we get. And you talk about the chances for meeting marriageable men — Amy, the men we meet are of two kinds, usually. The kind that want to marry us, but who can't improve our status. And the kind who offer something less than marriage—and expect us to like it!"

Amy looked at her roommate curiously. "All right," she said. "You don't like the way things are. What are you going to do about it?"

(To Be Continued)

Amy said, "All right. You don't like the way things are. What are you going to do about it?"

The STRANGE CASE of JULIA CRAIG

by Nard Jones

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JULIA CRAIG, pretty young secretary employed by the law firm of Woodford and Brooks, is discouraged about her job. She confides this to AMY SANDERS with whom she shares an apartment. Amy works in an exclusive dress shop.

PETER KEMP, also employed by Woodford and Brooks, is in love with Julia and has asked her to marry him, but she discourages his attentions.

Amy and Julia have been talking about love, marriage and their plans for the future. Amy says, "All right. You don't like the way things are. What are you going to do about it?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

JULIA said, without hesitation, "You know me well enough to know that if I didn't have some ideas for changing things I wouldn't be kicking." She took a long breath, then went on. "Amy, I'm going to try to do something with my voice. I don't mean anything fancy. But I know I have a knack for singing these modern songs."

Amy's tone was comically astonished. "You—you don't mean one of these female crooners?"

"Call it whatever you like," said Julia. "That's my plan."

"I guess I'll have to get a radio," Amy said, aloud as if to herself. "I saw a perfect honey yesterday for $5 down."

"I'm not kidding, Amy. But I don't mean radio singing. I know perfectly well that I haven't the best voice in the world, and that maybe I'll have to use my face and figure, too." She laughed. "Assuming I have them. You're always telling me I have."

"You know perfectly well you have. Did you ever look at a man's face when you were singing one of these modern torch songs?"

Julia took a cigaret of her own, tapped its end against the table, then put it down without touching it to her lips. "I'm going to try to get a job singing, Amy. It's my only chance to be something and to meet the right men. I won't work at Woodford and Brooks' until I'm old—until I get panicky and marry the first man who comes along!"

Amy started toward the kitchen. "Well, let's forget it now and see what we can make of the groceries you brought home."

Julia started to put on a kitchen apron over her black dress, but she had hardly tied the knot at her waist when the telephone rang. It was Peter Kemp. "I'm sorry, but I haven't had the chance to call you before this. I worked late at the office. Hope you haven't started dinner yet, because I'd like to take you out."

JULIA was hesitating at the telephone when Amy Sanders came in from the kitchenet. "Tell him you'll go to dinner with him," she advised quickly. "Royal Nesbitt is coming to take me out after dinner, and I'd have to hurry through it, anyhow."

"All right," said Julia into the mouthpiece. "I'd like to come, Peter."

When she replaced the instrument in its cradle she was facing Amy's amused smile. "I'm not weakening," she told Amy. "I happen to know that Peter has a friend who leads an orchestra. Maybe he can get me a chance to sing."

"Okay, darling. Go change your clothes while I have a cup of coffee to strengthen myself against Royal Nesbitt."

Julia Craig left the telephone and walked toward Amy. "You've been giving me some advice, Amy. What about this Royal Nesbitt?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean . . . he has money, and everybody in town knows he's not very serious-minded. Why is he giving you a run?"

"Why not?" asked Amy. "He likes me, and I think he's a lot of fun."

Julia's glance met that of Amy Sanders, met it squarely. "You'll watch your step, won't you?"

Amy grinned. "I always do, Julia. There's something funny about a dizzy blond giving advice to a brunet. But I get your point, all right."

"I may be blond," said Julia. "But I'm not dizzy . . . yet."

"You're telling me?" asked Amy and went to see to the percolator while Julia went into the dressing room which was also the hiding place for the fold-down bed. In that confined space, under a rather feeble electric light, she changed her clothes and prepared herself for Peter Kemp's call.

HE rang the bell promptly a half hour later. He was a well set up young man, neatly dressed and alert—and his eyes showed plainly that he worshiped Julia Craig.

"Sorry to creep up on you like this," he said when she let him in, "but I was working late at the office, and it suddenly occurred to me that I ought to stay down town and have dinner with you—if you'd let me."

"I'm glad you thought of it to night," Julia said, laughing. "Amy's all in a stir to get out for a date so I don't think she'd be much company at dinner."

Amy emerged from the dressing room, honking a flowered print dress. "Hullo, Peter. I warn you about Miss Craig tonight. This is one of her moody days."

Peter and Julia exchanged glances which told Amy that Peter Kemp was all too familiar with Julia's "moody days."

"Is that right?" he said lightly. "I'm afraid I'm in for it, then."

"I'm afraid you are," said Amy and disappeared into the dressing room again. "However" she called out, "I hope you have a good time."

When Peter and Julia were outside in the hall, he said, "Amy didn't really seem very hopeful that we would have a good time. What's wrong, Julia? Got the blues again?"

Julia nodded. "I'm afraid so, Peter. But they're not so bad this time. At last I've decided to do something about them."

He pressed the button for the automatic elevator and said quietly: "I don't suppose that means you'll marry me?"

"N-no, Peter. I—" Julia hesitated. "I'll tell you all about it at dinner."

THEY ate in a little restaurant near the apartment, for it developed that Peter had to complete his work at the office. It was on the big public utilities case that Julia had mentioned to Amy, and Peter had to prepare a brief for a phase of it. When the coffee came, Peter offered his cigarets and said, "All right Julia. Let's have it."

"I want to quit Woodford and Brooks, Peter."

"Yes? What then?"

Julia looked at him. "I—I've decided to try to sing, Peter!"

"You've decided to try!" exclaimed Kemp. "Say, right now you're better than nine-tenths of those dames who get paid for it in the night clubs!"

"You really think so?"

"I know it, Julia."

"Then will you give me a note of introduction to your friend Henri Lamb who leads the band at the Green Club?"

The directness of her question surprised Peter. "Why—I—"

"Will you, Peter?"

"Why of course, if you're really serious. But I don't see—"

"My mind's made up, Peter. And you can help me, if you will. You've known Lamb a long time."

"I'd do anything in the world for you, Julia. You know that. I'll—I'll write the note tonight and give it to you tomorrow morning at the office."

Peter pushed the button for the elevator. He said quietly, "I don't suppose that means you'll marry me?"

Year's Relief Cost Set at 7 Millions

Six Millions Would Be Spent For Relief Work

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Finance Director K. L. Ames, Jr., today estimated that if present supplementary relief works progress administration employes was continued throughout the year by the state, Illinois would spend more than $7,000,000 for that purpose in 1936.

Approximately one-fourth of the state's WPA job holders need supplementary aid, he said. This would mean around 50,000 families, since the WPA is expected to provide in excess of 200,000 jobs.

The amount of aid, he said, would average $10 monthly which would take $6,000,000 for 12 months. In addition to that, Ames said approximately $1,200,000 would be needed for administrative costs.

FIND WOODEN KEY

Goodwater, Ala.—(AP)—Officers know now why three prisoners in the jail here were so sleepy in the daytime. The trio, listed as Jesse Howard, Charles Smith and Cleo Wood, had been using a wooden key to escape nightly for several hours of high jinks, returning just before dawn awakened their jailer.

Discovery of the key has put an end to the nocturnal jaunts.

Speed Indicator Jammed at 180 Miles Per Hour Dug Out of Mud; Bodies Taken From Fast Airliner

CRASH UNEXPECTED

Goodwin, Ark. — (AP) — Investigators dug a jammed speed indicator today from the muddy swamp where 17 persons died in the crash of a luxury airliner and thereby found their first clue to the cause of the nation's worst plane travel disaster.

The official inquiry, headed by Eugene L. Vidal, assistant secretary of commerce for acronautics, must depend on mute evidence to fix the cause of "The Southerner's" plunge Tuesday night.

None aboard the giant plane when it ripped down into the wooded Arkansas swamp was left alive.

The pitifully torn bodies of the four women, 12 men and a child were being returned to their families today while state rangers stood guard over the twisted wreckage to prevent further looting.

The air speed indicator, jammed at 180 miles an hour—nearly three times the plane's landing speed—was enigma as well as clue.

With it, buried deep in the mud, were found the ignition switches, which were on, and the switch controlling the landing lights. It was off.

The big twin-motored Douglas had a top speed of about 200 miles, cruised at 180-190 and landed at 65-70. Thus if the broken instrument showed the speed at the time of impact, "The Southerner" was thundering along at full cruising speed when it smashed into the trees.

Vidal, dispatched by Secretary of Commerce Roper to head the official inquiry, will act with five others in efforts to fix the cause.

The unofficial theories on the tragedy were:

1. Shortly after the "all well" sent from 2,000 feet at 7:15 o'clock Tuesday night some mechanical trouble developed swiftly. Pilot Jerry Marshall came down and was heading for an open, water-covered rice field some 200 yards from the crash spot when the ship was dragged down by the trees.

2. Through some unexplained failure of mechanical aids he was unaware that he was so close to the ground and tore into the trees at full speed with no previous warning of the peril.

The jammed speed indicator and the fact the landing light switches were off lent support to the theory that the ship crashed without warning. It was argued, however, that the speed indicator and switches might have been shifted by the impact.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS—which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS.

The STRANGE CASE of JULIA CRAIG

by Nard Jones
Copyright NEA 1936

CHAPTER I

HER arms pressing two bundles close against her slender waist, and one small capable hand searching hurriedly for the key in her bag, Julia Craig stood before the door of the little apartment which she shared with Amy Sanders.

When at last she was successful in managing both the key and the two bulky bundles and had entered the apartment without mishap, Amy looked at her from the security of the room's one davenport. As dark as Julia was blond, Amy had reached home a few moments before, slipped into her red negligee and settled herself comfortably with a magazine.

Julia glared in mock anger. "Didn't you hear me trying to get in?"

"Sure," said Amy cheerfully. "But I knew you had a key."

"You knew it was my day to bring the groceries, too," said Julia from the kitchenet where she was disposing of the bundles on the diminutive tile drain-board. "And you knew I'd be loaded down like a truck horse."

Through the open doorway, Amy surveyed Julia's figure enviously. "You're a long way from being a truck horse, darling. Why don't you wear that black dress all the time? You're certainly a swell dish in it."

Julia returned to the room. Taking her smart little hat carefully by its front brim she lifted it from her blond head and tossed it on the table. Then she sank into the big chair beside the davenport. Now that she was inside the apartment, now that her working day was finished, she lost at once the alert and efficient manner which characterized Julia in the office and on the street. She had been tired the moment she left the office—the moment work had ceased and she could let herself down. But she hadn't shown it until now.

AMY gazed at her critically. "Bad day at the office, Julia?"

"No worse than most, I suppose," Julia said. "But the firm has been given a big case that involves a lot of money and some future business. Everybody down there seems pitched up to the screaming point."

"Well," Amy sighed, "at least it's exciting to work for lawyers. You should try to sell the latest models to these old hens for eight hours a day."

"I'd think it would be interesting, Amy. You get a chance to see in the flesh some of these women I can see only through their pictures in the society section."

Amy snorted. "Personally, I'd rather look at them in pictures. I waited on Mrs. Hamilton Uzzon today. Ever hear of her?"

"Of course," Julia said. "She had a tea for the Garden Club last week. There was a whole page of pictures in the paper, and—"

"Yeah," said Amy irreverently. "Listen—the Uzzon bill hasn't been paid at our shop for a year and a half. Mrs. Hamilton Uzzon couldn't buy an extra button in our place unless she paid cash, and all the girls have instructions to that effect. Mrs. Uzzon knows it, too—but she comes into the shop with her friends and tries on dresses by the hour. Then when it's all over she says, 'Really, I think your gowns are getting awfully nondescript.'"

Julia laughed. "I think that's delightful!"

"Well, if you had to listen to it you wouldn't have such a nice sense of humor," Amy mentioned. "And we all have to be nice to her because her husband may pay the bill any minute—and because she has influence."

"That's the whole story," said Julia reflectively. "You have to be nice to her, because she has influence. And she has influence because she's had money and may have it again."

AT her roommate's cynical tone, Amy's dark eyes widened. "That may be," she said stoutly. "But I wouldn't trade places with Mrs. Hamilton Uzzon for all her tea parties and pictures in the roto-gravure section. She's the most unhappy person in the world. I can tell. And I'll bet her husband is a close second."

"Just the same," Julia answered, "I'd take a chance on her unhappiness."

Amy tossed the magazine to the foot of the davenport and brought her slippered feet to the floor. "What's got into you, Julia? You've been moping for weeks now. You used to be the life of the party when we'd have the gang in. Last time they were here you wouldn't even sing a song for us. And everybody knows you can make a song sound all right, even when the tune isn't so good and the words are absolutely senseless."

"What do you mean, 'everybody' knows it?" enquired Julia, getting up restlessly. "Maybe the gang, as you call them, knows it. But nobody else does."

"What do you care about that?"

Julia turned suddenly, her eyes gleaming. "I care a lot, Amy. I'm sick and tired of working for Woodford and Brooks."

"It's a good job, Julia. You get a lot more money than I do. A lot more than most girls working downtown."

"What if I do? Where does it get me?" Julia paced to the window and looked out. Then she said slowly: "I'm 20, Amy."

"I'm 25," Amy said. "And I'm still having a lot of fun."

Julia turned. "Maybe you are," she said cruelly, "but it's not the kind of fun I want. Amy, I don't want to be George Woodford's secretary until I'm old. I'll—I'll be like Miss Jamieson down at the office. She's been there for 22 years."

"Maybe she likes it," said Amy. "Every girl isn't as ambitious as you are, Julia."

"Aren't they?" argued Julia. "I'm not so sure. I think they are—until life gets them down."

AMY SANDERS stared at the carpet a moment. Then: "Julia . . . you said Peter Kemp wanted to marry you. Why don't you take him up?"

"Because I don't want to," said Julia quickly.

"Because you don't love him?" asked Amy quietly. "He's a nice boy—and it's plain he loves you."

"I haven't thought about love, Amy. But I've thought about some things that are a darned sight more important. Peter Kemp doesn't get any more money at Woodford and Brooks' than I do. They use him to brief their cases—then Mr. Woodford or Mr. Brooks goes into court and make the brilliant showing. I don't want to marry a man like that, Amy."

"You're being pretty cold-blooded about it," Amy told her. "When you really fall in love you'll change your tune. Then you'll find that money isn't so important."

"Suppose I did marry Peter Kemp," Julia answered. "We'd have a little apartment at first—like this one. Then we'd probably have children, and have to move into a little rented house where there'd be a lot of hard work and not much else."

Amy didn't reply at once. She reached for a cigaret from the pack on the little table. When she had lighted it and blown a pillar of smoke toward the ceiling, she said, "Well . . . I didn't mean you have to take Peter. But in a job like yours you have a chance to meet a lot of likely men."

"Oh, yes," said Julia. "We have a chance to meet men. But—" she faced her roommate squarely, "Amy, the average girl working in an office is stuck any way you look at it. We work for wages that most men wouldn't think of accepting; and we do plenty of work, too. Lots of times we correct the mistakes of men who get three and four times the salary we get. And you talk about the chances for meeting marriageable men — Amy, the men we meet are of two kinds, usually. The kind that want to marry us, but who can't improve our status. And the kind who offer something less than marriage—and expect us to like it!"

Amy looked at her roommate curiously. "All right," she said. "You don't like the way things are. What are you going to do about it?"

Amy said, "All right. You don't like the way things are. What are you going to do about it?"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JULIA CRAIG, pretty young secretary employed by the law firm of Woodford and Brooks, is discouraged about her job. She confides this to AMY SANDERS, with whom she shares an apartment. Amy works in an exclusive dress shop.

PETER KEMP, also employed by Woodford and Brooks, is in love with Julia and has asked her to marry him, but she discourages his attentions.

Amy and Julia have been talking about love, marriage and their plans for the future. Amy says, "All right. You don't like the way things are. What are you going to do about it?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

JULIA said, without hesitation. "You know me well enough to know that if I didn't have some ideas for changing things I wouldn't be kicking." She took a long breath, then went on, "Amy, I'm going to try to do something with my voice. I don't mean anything fancy. But I know I have a knack for singing these modern songs."

Amy's tone was comically astonished. "You—you don't mean one of these female crooners?"

"Call it whatever you like," said Julia. "That's my plan."

"I guess I'll have to get a radio," Amy said, aloud as if to herself. "I saw a perfect honey yesterday for $5 down."

"I'm not kidding, Amy. But I don't mean radio singing. I know perfectly well that I haven't the best voice in the world, and that maybe I'll have to use my face and figure, too." She laughed. "Assuming I have them. You're always telling me I have."

"You know perfectly well you have. Did you ever look at a man's face when you were singing one of these modern torch songs?"

Julia took a cigaret of her own, tapped its end against the table, then put it down without touching it to her lips. "I'm going to try to get a job singing, Amy. It's my only chance to be something and to meet the right men. I won't work at Woodford and Brooks' until I'm old—until I get panicky and marry the first man who comes along!"

Amy started toward the kitchen. "Well, let's forget it now and see what we can make of the groceries you brought home."

Julia started to put on a kitchen apron over her black dress, but she had hardly tied the knot at her waist when the telephone rang. It was Peter Kemp. "I'm sorry, but I haven't had the chance to call you before this. I worked late at the office. Hope you haven't started dinner yet, because I'd like to take you out."

JULIA was hesitating at the telephone when Amy Sanders came in from the kitchenet. "Tell him you'll go to dinner with him," she advised quickly. "Royal Nesbitt is coming to take me out after dinner, and I'd have to hurry through it, anyhow."

"All right," said Julia into the mouthpiece. "I'd like to come, Peter."

When she replaced the instrument in its cradle she was facing Amy's amused smile. "I'm not weakening," she told Amy. "I happen to know that Peter has a friend who leads an orchestra. Maybe he can get me a chance to sing."

"Okay, darling. Go change your clothes while I have a cup of coffee to strengthen myself against Royal Nesbitt."

Julia Craig left the telephone and walked toward Amy. "You've been giving me some advice, Amy. What about this Royal Nesbitt?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean . . . he has money, and everybody in town knows he's not very serious-minded. Why is he giving you a run?"

"Why not?" asked Amy. "He likes me, and I think he's a lot of fun."

Julia's glance met that of Amy Sanders, met it squarely. "You'll watch your step, won't you?"

Amy grinned. "I always do, Julia. There's something funny about a dizzy blond giving advice to a brunet. But I get your point, all right."

"I may be blond," said Julia. "But I'm not dizzy . . . yet."

"You're telling me?" asked Amy and went to see to the percolator while Julia went into the dressing room which was also the hiding place for the fold-down bed. In that confined space, under a rather feeble electric light, she changed her clothes and prepared herself for Peter Kemp's call.

HE rang the bell promptly a half hour later. He was a well set up young man, neatly dressed and alert—and his eyes showed plainly that he worshiped Julia Craig.

"Sorry to creep up on you like this," he said when she let him in. "But I was working late at the office, and it suddenly occurred to me that I ought to stay down town and have dinner with you—if you'd let me."

"I'm glad you thought of it tonight," Julia said, laughing. "Amy's all in a stir to get out for a date so I don't think she'd be much company at dinner."

Amy emerged from the dressing room, hooking a flowered print dress. "Hullo, Peter. I warn you about Miss Craig tonight. This is one of her moody days."

Peter and Julia exchanged glances which told Amy that Peter Kemp was all too familiar with Julia's "moody days."

"Is that right?" he said lightly. "I'm afraid I'm in for it, then."

"I'm afraid you are," said Amy and disappeared into the dressing room again. "However," she called out, "I hope you have a good time."

When Peter and Julia were outside in the hall, he said, "Amy didn't really seem very hopeful that we would have a good time. What's wrong, Julia? Got the blues again?"

Julia nodded. "I'm afraid so, Peter. But they're not so bad this time. At last I've decided to do something about them."

He pressed the button for the automatic elevator and said quietly: "I don't suppose that means you'll marry me?"

"N-no, Peter. I—" Julia hesitated. "I'll tell you all about it at dinner."

THEY ate in a little restaurant near the apartment, for it developed that Peter had to complete his work at the office. It was on the big public utilities case that Julia had mentioned to Amy, and Peter had to prepare a brief for a phase of it. When the coffee came, Peter offered his cigarets and said, "All right, Julia. Let's have it."

"I want to quit Woodford and Brooks, Peter."

"Yes? What then?"

Julia looked at him. "I—I've decided to try to sing, Peter!"

"You've decided to try!" exclaimed Kemp. "Say, right now you're better than nine-tenths of these dames who get paid for it in the night clubs!"

"You really think so?"

"I know it, Julia."

"Then will you give me a note of introduction to your friend Henri Lamb who leads the band at the Green Club?"

The directness of her question surprised Peter. "Why—I—"

"Will you, Peter?"

"Why of course, if you're really serious. But I don't see—"

"My mind's made up, Peter. And you can help me, if you will. You've known Lamb a long time."

"I'd do anything in the world for you, Julia. You know that. I'll—I'll write the note tonight and give it to you tomorrow morning at the office."

Peter pushed the button for the elevator. He said quietly, "I don't suppose that means you'll marry me?"

Year's Relief Cost Set at 7 Millions

Six Millions Would Be Spent For Relief Work

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Finance Director K. L. Ames, Jr., today estimated that if present supplementary relief works progress administration employes was continued throughout the year by the state, Illinois would spend more than $7,000,000 for that purpose in 1936.

Approximately one-fourth of the state's WPA job holders need supplementary aid, he said. This would mean around 50,000 families, since the WPA is expected to provide in excess of 200,000 jobs.

The amount of aid, he said, would average $10 monthly which would take $6,000,000 for 12 months. In addition to that, Ames said approximately $1,200,000 would be needed for administrative costs.

Discovery of the key has put an end to the nocturnal jaunts.

Speed Indicator Jammed at 180 Miles Per Hour Dug Out of Mud; Bodies Taken From Fast Airliner

CRASH UNEXPECTED

Goodwin, Ark. — (AP) — Investigators dug a jammed speed indicator today from the muddy swamp where 17 persons died in the crash of a luxury airliner and thereby found their first clue to the cause of the nation's worst plane travel disaster.

The official inquiry, headed by Eugene L. Vidal, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, must depend on mute evidence to fix the cause of "The Southerner's" plunge Tuesday night.

None aboard the giant plane when it ripped down into the wooded Arkansas swamp was left alive.

The pitifully torn bodies of the four women, 12 men and a child were being returned to their families today while state rangers stood guard over the twisted wreckage to prevent further looting.

The air speed indicator, jammed at 180 miles an hour—nearly three times the plane's landing speed—was enigma as well as clue.

With it, buried deep in the mud, were found the ignition switches, which were on, and the switch controlling the landing lights. It was off.

World Champion Speed Typist To Give Exhibition

Chester Soucek Who Writes 200 Words Per Minute Will Visit Brown's

Jacksonville citizens interested in being shown in a highly practical way that the hand is actually quicker than the eye will be given this opportunity today, when Chester Soucek, holder of the World's Amateur Typewriting Championship record, will display his amazing technique in a demonstration at the local Brown's Business college.

Rhythm, concentration, lightning change of papers, and submission to an interview while writing from unfamiliar copy at a speed of 125 words per minute, as well as typing over 200 words per minute from familiar copy are all a part of Mr. Soucek's program.

Charles Soucek's best record was established at the International Typewriting contest held at Toronto, Canada, when he wrote 118 net five-stroke words per minute for a period of one-half hour from copy which he had never seen before. In the half hour's writing he struck 18,389 keys, misstriking only 14, which left an accuracy percentage of 99.9% perfect copy.

Mr. Soucek's demonstration will be given at the business college at 3:30 p. m. this afternoon. All commercial students in the local schools and in the community will be welcome to attend this demonstration. Mr. Soucek is making an educational tour of the middle west.

"MET" HAILS OKLAHOMA STAR

Applicant for a Metropolitan Opera audition one day, acclaimed the season's star tenor discovery two days later. That synopsizes Giuseppe Bentonelli's meteoric raise to fame. As Joseph Benton, he was a member of the University of Oklahoma Glee Club. He Italianized his name while singing in Italy. The illness and unavailability of other Metropolitan tenors gave him his desired chance. He's pictured costumed as Grieux, the role in which he made his debut, opposite Lucrezia Bori (right) in "Manon", in New York.

World Champion Speed Typist To Give Exhibition

Chester Soucek Who Writes 200 Words Per Minute Will Visit Brown's

Jacksonville citizens interested in being shown in a highly practical way that the hand is actually quicker than the eye will be given this opportunity today, when Chester Soucek, holder of the World's Amateur Typewriting championship record, will display his amazing technique in a demonstration at the local Brown's Business college.

Rhythm, concentration, lightning change of papers, and submission to an interview while writing from unfamiliar copy at a speed of 125 words per minute, as well as typing over 200 words per minute from familiar copy are all a part of Mr. Soucek's program.

Charles Soucek's best record was established at the International Typewriting contest held at Toronto, Canada, when he wrote 118 net five-stroke words per minute for a period of one-half hour from copy which he had never seen before. In the half hour's writing he struck 18,389 keys, misstriking only 14, which left an accuracy percentage of 99.9% perfect copy.

Mr. Soucek's demonstration will be given at the business college at 3:30 p. m. this afternoon. All commercial students in the local schools and in the community will be welcome to attend this demonstration. Mr. Soucek is making an educational tour of the middle west.

Routt And I.S.D. Tangle Tonight In Opening City Cage Warfare

Murrayville Noses Out First Foe 40 to 39; Winchester is Winner Over Bluffs 28 to 24

Murrayville 40; Griggsville 39.
Winchester 28; Bluffs 24.

Winchester, Jan. 16—Battling with two of their regulars waved to the bench on fouls, Murrayville high's Shadows outlasted a Griggsville rally in the fourth quarter here tonight to enter the semi-finals where they will meet Winchester, 40 to 39, the Wildcats moving up to challenge the defending champions by throwing a tight defense around the Bluffs hoop to win a tight 28 to 24 decision.

In the upper bracket, White Hall and Pittsfield, leaders in the southwestern and northwestern divisions of the Illinois Valley conference, tangle in the first of the semi-final games Friday night, to be followed by the Winchester-Murrayville battle for a place in the final rounds.

Held scoreless in the last quarter, the Shadows barely outlasted a comeback drive of the Griggsville lads, who were left trailing 11 points when the Shadows pounded the irons for 14 points in the third quarter.

Griggsville couldn't keep track of Murrayville's Ken Brown, who stormed the wickets for half of his team's total points. Murphy and Burch led the Griggsville scoring, but the Shadows, who pushed out in front decisively during the third quarter, piled up too large a margin for the Pike county lads to overcome.

Murrayville had a taste of what was coming when they ran up a 16 to 12 lead in the first quarter, one of the hottest scoring eight minutes in tournament history, and then found themselves leading only one point, 25 to 26 at the end of the first half. The Shadows turned on their full speed in the third quar[illegible] what [illegible] to b[illegible]

Bluffs surprised the Wildcats by taking them for a 6-4 count in the first quarter, but the Bluejays fell behind in the second quarter when Winchester spurted out to a 14-7 lead. The Cats continued to add to their margin during the third period, but were held to seven points while Bluffs was banging in 11 points in the final period.

Coughlin and Leitze were the high gunners for the victors.

Tournaments Stop Activity In Illinois Valley; One Game Listed

Only one Illinois Valley conference game is on the schedule for tonight, as tournaments crack down on the list of teams engaged in court warfare. Winchester is holding its annual, Petersburg opened last night, and the Little Eight conference teams are enbroiled at Rockbridge in a tournament which takes in first and second strings from all of the conference schools.

Greenfield's invasion of Roodhouse is the lone conference encounter booked for the week, although teams in the Spoon River and West Central resume their schedules after the interruption caused by the Beardstown tournament.

Bath's high scoring aggregation will be at Virginia tonight, and Mt. Sterling's quintet will invade Chandlerville for a double header. Waverly will carry its M. S. M. campaign to Auburn, and Hull will invade Nebo for one of those all-important games. Alsey will go to Chapin for another game.

The I. S. D.-Missouri S. D. game carded for Jacksonville Saturday night has been postponed because of illness at the local school. New Berlin will be at Waverly and Feitshans will play the Ashland Panthers.

There are more than 4,400,000 prints in the fingerprint files of the Bureau of Investigation of the United States. This is said to be the most complete collection in the world.

A correspondence school for children, located in Queensland, Australia, has 6000 pupils and is said to be the largest school of its kind in the world.

Both Teams at Top Strength For First of Pair; J. H. S. Meets Carrollton Quintet

Probable Starters.

Routt	Pos.	I.S.D.
Lair	F.	Wells
Balkan	F.	Rajski
Fritscher	C.	Baumann
Beerup	G.	Arman
Lawrence	G.	Wildrich

Preliminary, 7 p. m.—I. S. D. reserves vs. Routt reserves.
Main game—8 p. m.
Place—Liberty Hall.

Jacksonville's city basketball strife will open tonight with those two old rivals, Routt and Illinois School for the Deaf, going to the mat in the Liberty Hall gymnasium. The second strings are scheduled to bump off the lid in the opening game at seven o'clock, and the two varsity combinations probably will begin firing about eight o'clock.

The game, the first of a pair to be played by these two teams this year, is expected to attract a banner throng. The Tigers took two games from the Rockets last year, and this fall added the annual football game to their list of victorious conquests over the east siders. They rate a slight favorite to win tonight's basketball game—but anything can happen.

While the two local teams are battling it out on the Liberty Hall floor, the Jacksonville high Crimsons will test themselves against Carrollton's Hawks on the David Prince floor. Two games have been booked, to be called at seven and eight o'clock.

Both Routt and I. S. D. will be at top strength for the game. The Tigers have recovered the services of Wells, high gunner for their cause thus far this year, following an injury which prevented him from making the trip to Joliet and Ottawa last week-end. He is expected to be back in the starting line-up at his forward position, along with either Rajski or Otten.

Should Coach S. Robey Burns decide to use Otten at forward, Rajski probably will drop back to a guard position in Arman's place. Baumann, the big Tiger center, and Wildrich, Murrayville cager, will complete the I. S. D. line-up.

The Tigers have split even on games played thus far, winning and losing four games, while the Rockets have been playing good ball, but coming out on the short end in four out of their six games.

Lack of height has been the greatest Routt trouble thus far, along with a little greenness. Balkan and Beerup, who will be in Routt's starting line-up tonight, are new to the Routt style of play this year, and Lair has been a reserve until this year. Fritscher and Lawrence are the only full-fledged veterans on the starting line-up.

Carrollton at J. H. S

Although Lynn Ferguson has had his shoulder out of a sling for several day, there is no hope that he will be able to compete in any more J. H. S. games this year. Ferguson will become ineligible at the close of the present semester, Jan. 24.

Elmer Lukeman, who got his big chance when Ferguson broke his collar-bone, and came through with flying colors at the Beardstown tournament, will be in the forward position Ferguson left open. He will team with Bob Hamm, who has taken over the high scoring work for the Crimsons, in his forward position.

Alfred "George" Hamilton, center, John Bellatti, guard, and George Moxon, guard, will be the other members of the starting quintet in the varsity game.

Jacksonville may have its own invitational tournament next year as the result of the withdrawal of Jacksonville high from future Beardstown tournaments.

Coach Frank Walker, talking over the proposition the other day, said he would like to have an invitational tournament here, but if he found that it would be impossible, he probably would enter the Crimsons in some other tournament.

Mose Pearce, at Petersburg, quick to act on Walker's announcement that the Crimsons would not go to Beardstown again, relayed an invitation for the Crimson authorities to come up to his Petersburg invitational, see how it was conducted, and if possible make arrangements to take it in next year.

Walker declares that his players like to go to Petersburg for several reasons. They like the reception they get there at the hands of the crowds and they like the playing floor and gymnasium facilities. Petersburg has a reputation for its good sportsmanship, established through the continuous efforts of persons in charge of its athletic contests.

Herb Scheffler, Springfield high's all-state center of last year, has decided to change colleges again. He's going to Washington University in St. Louis, for his next effort.

Herb, according to the dope circulating around here, and it came from pretty authentic sources, is going to enter the school of medicine. Washington U., we understand, is ready to see him through four years of preparatory work and three years of medicine if he will just come down there and play basketball and football, and maybe a little baseball.

It isn't the first time Jimmy Conzelman's scouts have hunted up ivory in the Little 19 league. There was a feeler put out for Tony Pacotti a few years ago, Bricker, a former Southern Normal star found a place at Washington set up for him, and Tony Blazine, Illinois Wesleyan star, left signed affidavits with certain authorities to the effect that Conzelman, himself, solicited Tony's attendance at Washington.

Herb told local folks that the reason he was leaving was that he could get his seven years of medicine without cost to himself. Herb is not the type that is given to bragging, and in one instance when he related the cause for his withdrawal here, forfeiting his first semester's work in order to remain eligible for four years competition at Washington, gave the information, rather reluctantly. He liked the boys and was having a good time.

Looks as if Washington would be a good place for the Carnegie Foundation to begin doing some work. Such a record deserves a bit of investigation.

And Jim Winn has been barred from competition in the Y. M. C. A. league until the officers of the league get a report from three sports governing bodies upon how his competition will affect other players in the league. Jim is a professional baseball player.

Athletic Director LaRue Van Meter saw Illinois Wesleyan hang one on Millikin's brow the other night, and immediately began mapping out what he plans to have his Blueboys do this Saturday night when they go up to Bloomington for a game added to the Illini's schedule. Wesleyan walloped Millikin 42 to 24, but Brother Fred Young, who wrote the story of the game, neglected to record the score at the end of the first half, which might give some sort of an idea as to just what happened.

Delmar Cox, Millikin's big center, got just four points, all of them free throws. It appears that Lasiter will have his work cut out for him, if he is going to stay up in front in the scoring race. Coach Harry Bell apparently has figured out some way to cut the big boys down to the size of the average players.

The victory was the seventh in a row for Wesleyan. Dennis Cochran, a freshman (note) made 11 points, George Ruff, a freshman (note) center, were two of the big shots on the Wesleyan team. The note means that this is the last year Illinois College will use freshmen on their varsity teams.

Bradley slipped over one on Carthage, 22 to 19, the same night, and the night before, Macomb romped over Eureka 72 to 35.

Ashland Noses Out Easton On 2 Tosses

Ashland, Jan. 16.—Free throws by Douglass and Lynn during the fourth quarter, the only points scored in the last eight minutes of play, gave Ashland a 19 to 17 victory over Easton here tonight. The two teams were tied up at 17 all at the end of the third period.

Ashland led by two points at the end of the first quarter, but the margin was cut to a single point at the end of the first half, 11-10.

Bill Tilden Downs Bell in Pro Match

Chicago—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden may be 42 but Berkeley Bell and at least 4,000 Chicagoans knew today the Old Master's touch was still there.

Bell, new member of Tilden's barnstorming pro tennis troupe, won the first set of their match at 6-3 last night at the Stockyards Amphitheater and took a 4-0 lead in the second, only to have Big Bill win the next six games and the set, 6-4, then breeze through the match set, 6-3.

Ellsworth Vines won from Lester Stoeffen, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, and Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold of Pasadena, Calif., defeated Jane Sharp, Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-4, in other singles matches.

The new doubles team of Vines and Bell unexpectedly bested Stoeffen and George Lott, former Wimbledon champs, 7-9, 6-2, 6-4.

expecting to achieve his 23rd knockout in 27 fights at the expense of Retzlaff, he will be accepting his fourth 15-round bout in his 19-month old professional career. That he never needed anywhere near 15 rounds to dispose of Carnera, Baer, Uzcudun or Levinsky, is a matter of record. In fact, against the four of them Louis used only 15 rounds, six for Carnera, four each for Max and Paulino, and only one for Levinsky.

"I'll knock Louis out. I'll hurt him with my right," said Retzlaff.

weighed more than four or five pounds, as he expects to go into the ring at 196.

Louis, who earned $364,000 with his fists last year, may pick up another $40,000 tomorrow night, as he will receive 40 per cent of the gate, radio and moving pictures. Retzlaff will receive 17½ per cent of the gate receipts.

As a matter of insurance, Mike Jacobs, promoter of the Twentieth Century Club of New York, has an option on Retzlaff's services for three fights, if he should triumph. Jacobs also has a five year option on Louis and has a hand in the promotion of tomorrow night's bout, which is scheduled to start at 10 p. m. Central Standard Time.

Winchester, Jan. 16—Battling with two of their regulars waved to the bench on fouls, Murrayville high's Shadows outlasted a Griggsville rally in the fourth quarter here tonight to enter the semi-finals where they will meet Winchester, 40 to 39, the Wildcats moving up to challenge the defending champions by throwing a tight defense around the Bluffs hoop to win a tight 28 to 24 decision.

In the upper bracket, White Hall and Pittsfield, leaders in the southwestern and northwestern divisions of the Illinois Valley conference, tangle in the first of the semi-final games Friday night, to be followed by the Winchester-Murrayville battle for a place in the final rounds.

Held scoreless in the last quarter, the Shadows barely outlasted a comeback drive of the Griggsville lads, who were left trailing 11 points when the Shadows pounded the irons for 14 points in the third quarter.

Griggsville couldn't keep track of Murrayville's Ken Brown, who stormed the wickets for half of his team's total points. Murphy and Burch led the Griggsville scoring, but the Shadows, who pushed out in front decisively during the third quarter, piled up too large a margin for the Pike county lads to overcome.

Murrayville had a taste of what was coming when they ran up a 16 to 12 lead in the first quarter, one of the hottest scoring eight minutes in tournament history, and then found themselves leading only one point, 25 to 26 at the end of the first half. The Shadows turned on their full speed in the third quar[illegible] what [illegible] to b[illegible]

Bluffs surprised the Wildcats by taking them for a 6-4 count in the first quarter, but the Bluejays fell behind in the second quarter when Winchester spurted out to a 14-7 lead. The Cats continued to add to their margin during the third period, but were held to seven points while Bluffs was banging in 11 points in the final period.

Coughlin and Leitze were the high gunners for the victors.

Swifts climbed into undisputed leadership of the Y. M. C. The Merchants defeated Lynnville A. C. 32 to 16, and the Smith Indees took a game from the Playboys 32 to 22.

Tied up at the end of the first quarter, the Swifts team nosed out in front 12 to 10 at the end of the first half. Swifts broke in front in the third quarter, and led 18 to 12 at the finish, and then went on to pile up eight more points on its margin before the finish.

The Indeees had a comfortable margin all the way through their game with the Playboys, and the Merchants zoomed out in front in the second quarter to pile up a safe margin for the remainder of their game with the Lynnville A. C.

Tournaments Stop Activity In Illinois Valley; One Game Listed

Only one Illinois Valley conference game is on the schedule for tonight, as tournaments crack down on the list of teams engaged in court warfare. Winchester is holding its annual, Petersburg opened last night, and the Little Eight conference teams are enbroiled at Rockbridge in a tournament which takes in first and second strings from all of the conference schools.

Greenfield's invasion of Roodhouse is the lone conference encounter booked for the week, although teams in the Spoon River and West Central resume their schedules after the interruption caused by the Beardstown tournament.

Bath's high scoring aggregation will be at Virginia tonight, and Mt. Sterling's quintet will invade Chandlerville for a double header. Waverly will carry its M. S. M. campaign to Auburn, and Hull will invade Nebo for one of those all-important games. Alsey will go to Chapin for another game.

The I. S. D.-Missouri S. D. game carded for Jacksonville Saturday night has been postponed because of illness at the local school. New Berlin will be at Waverly and Feitshans will play the Ashland Panthers.

There are more than 4,400,000 prints in the fingerprint files of the Bureau of Investigation of the United States. This is said to be the most complete collection in the world.

A correspondence school for children, located in Quensland, Australia, has 6000 pupils and is said to be the largest school of its kind in the world.

Both Teams at Top Strength For First of Pair; J. H. S. Meets Carrollton Quintet

Probable Starters.

Routt	Pos.	I.S.D.
Lair	F.	Wells
Balkan	F.	Rajski
Fritscher	C.	Baumann
Beerup	G.	Arman
Lawrence	G.	Wildrich

Preliminary, 7 p. m.—I. S. D. reserves vs. Routt reserves.
Main game—8 p. m.
Place—Liberty Hall.

Jacksonville's city basketball strife will open tonight with those two old rivals, Routt and Illinois School for the Deaf, going to the mat in the Liberty Hall gymnasium. The second strings are scheduled to bump off the lid in the opening game at seven o'clock, and the two varsity combinations probably will begin firing about eight o'clock.

The game, the first of a pair to be played by these two teams this year, is expected to attract a banner throng. The Tigers took two games from the Rockets last year, and this fall added the annual football game to their list of victorious conquests over the east siders. They rate a slight favorite to win tonight's basketball game—but anything can happen.

While the two local teams are battling it out on the Liberty Hall floor, the Jacksonville high Crimsons will test themselves against Carrollton's Hawks on the David Prince floor. Two games have been booked, to be called at seven and eight o'clock.

Both Routt and I. S. D. will be at top strength for the game. The Tigers have recovered the services of Wells, high gunner for their cause thus far this year, following an injury which prevented him from making the trip to Joliet and Ottawa last week-end. He is expected to be back in the starting line-up at his forward position, along with either Rajski or Otten.

Should Coach S. Robey Burns decide to use Otten at forward, Rajski probably will drop back to a guard position in Arman's place. Baumann, the big Tiger center, and Wildrich, Murrayville cager, will complete the I. S. D. line-up.

The Tigers have split even on games played thus far, winning and losing four games, while the Rockets have been playing good ball, but coming out on the short end in four out of their six games.

Lack of height has been the greatest Routt trouble thus far, along with a little greenness. Balkan and Beerup, who will be in Routt's starting line-up tonight, are new to the Routt style of play this year, and Lair has been a reserve until this year. Fritscher and Lawrence are the only full-feldged veterans on the starting line-up.

Carrollton at J. H. S

Although Lynn Ferguson has had his shoulder out of a sling for several day, there is no hope that he will be able to compete in any more J. H. S. games this year. Ferguson will become ineligible at the close of the present semester, Jan. 24.

Elmer Lukeman, who got his big chance when Ferguson broke his collar-bone, and came through with flying colors at the Beardstown tournament, will be in the forward position Ferguson left open. He will team with Bob Hamm, who has taken over the high scoring work for the Crimsons, in his forward position.

Alfred "George" Hamilton, center, John Bellatti, guard, and George Moxon, guard, will be the other members of the starting quintet in the varsity game.

Jacksonville may have its own invitational tournament next year as the result of the withdrawal of Jacksonville high from future Beardstown tournaments.

Coach Frank Walker, talking over the proposition the other day, said he would like to have an invitational tournament here, but if he found that it would be impossible, he probably would enter the Crimsons in some other tournament.

Mose Pearce, at Petersburg, quick to act on Walker's announcement that the Crimsons would not go to Beardstown again, relayed an invitation for the Crimson authorities to come up to his Petersburg invitational, see how it was conducted, and if possible make arrangements to take it in next year.

Walker declares that his players like to go to Petersburg for several reasons. They like the reception they get there at the hands of the crowds and they like the playing floor and gymansium facilities. Petersburg has a reputation for its good sportsmanship, established through the continuous efforts of persons in charge of its athletic contests.

Herb Scheffler, Springfield high's all-state center of last year, has decided to change colleges again. He's going to Washington University, in St. Louis, for his next effort.

Herb, according to the dope circulating around here, and it came from pretty authentic sources, is going to enter the school of medicine. Washington U., we understand, is ready to see him through four years of preparatory work and three years of medicine if he will just come down there and play basketball and football, and maybe a little baseball.

It isn't the first time Jimmy Conzelman's scouts have hunted up ivory in the Little 19 league. There was a feeler put out for Tony Pacotti a few years ago, Bricker, a former Southern Normal star found a place at Washington set up for him, and Tony Blazine, Illinois Wesleyan star, left signed affidavits with certain authorities to the effect that Conzelman, himself, solicited Tony's attendance at Washington.

Herb told local folks that the reason he was leaving was that he could get his seven years of medicine without cost to himself. Herb is not the type that is given to bragging, and in one instance when he related the cause for his withdrawal here, forfeiting his first semester's work in order to remain eligible for four years competition at Washington, gave the information, rather reluctantly. He liked the boys and was having a good time.

Looks as if Washington would be a good place for the Carnegie Foundation to begin doing some work. Such a record deserves a bit of investigation.

And Jim Winn has been barred from competition in the Y. M. C. A. league until the officers of the league get a report from three sports governing bodies upon how his competition will affect other players in the league. Jim is a professional baseball player.

Athletic Director LaRue Van Meter saw Illinois Wesleyan hang one on Millikin's brow the other night, and immediately began mapping out what he plans to have his Blueboys do this Saturday night when they go up to Bloomington for a game added to the Illini schedule. Wesleyan walloped Millikin 42 to 24, but Brother Fred Young, who wrote the story of the game, neglected to record the score at the end of the first half, which might give some sort of an idea as to just what happened.

Delmar Cox, Millikin's big center, got just four points, all of them free throws. It appears that Lasiter will have his work cut out for him, if he is going to stay up in front in the scoring race. Coach Harry Bell apparently has figured out some way to cut the big boys down to the size of the average players.

The victory was the seventh in a row for Wesleyan. Dennis Cochran, a freshman (note) made 11 points, George Ruff, a freshman (note) center, were two of the big shots on the Wesleyan team. The note means that this is the last year Illinois College will use freshmen on their varsity teams.

Bradley slipped over one on Carthage, 22 to 19, the same night, and the night before, Macomb romped over Eureka 72 to 35.

expecting to achieve his 23rd knockout in 27 fights at the expense of Retzlaff, he will be accepting his fourth 15-round bout in his 19-month old professional career. That he never needed anywhere near 15 rounds to dispose of Carnera, Baer, Uzcudun or Levinsky, is a matter of record. In fact, against the four of them Louis used only 15 rounds, six for Carnera, four each for Max and Paulino, and only one for Levinsky.

"I'll knock Louis out. I'll hurt him with my right," said Retzlaff.

Bill Tilden Downs Bell in Pro Match

Chicago—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden may be 42 but Berkeley Bell and at least 4,000 Chicagoans knew today the Old Master's touch was still there.

Bell, new member of Tilden's barnstorming pro tennis troupe, won the first set of their match at 6-3 last night at the Stockyards Amphitheater and took a 4-0 lead in the second, only to have Big Bill win the next six games and the set, 6-4, then breeze through the match set, 6-3.

Ellsworth Vines won from Lester Stoeffen, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, and Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold of Pasadena, Calif., defeated Jane Sharp, Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-4, in other singles matches.

The new doubles team of Vines and Bell unexpectedly bested Stoeffen and George Lott, former Wimbledon champs, 7-9, 6-3, 6-4.

Municipal Plants Mostly Liability, Bellatti Declares

Attorney in Kiwanis Club Talk Points to Rates Now in Effect

Asserting that statistics show most municipal light plants are failures and declaring that Jacksonville has the lowest electric rates of any city of its size in Illinois, Attorney Walter Bellatti addressed members of the local Kiwanis club at its meeting here yesterday. Mr. Bellatti's address followed the talk of last week when Alex Van Praag of Decatur spoke at the Kiwanis meeting in favor of a municipal plant.

Mr. Bellatti spoke in part as follows:

"The average citizen spends only $1.00 out of each $100.00 in his budget for electricity. The average cost of living is 35% higher than the pre-war level, while the cost of electricity is 42% lower, and in Jacksonville the reduction is more than that despite a contrary belief of many citizens who do not take the trouble to investigate.

"On the whole, municipal plants have never been successful. Between the year 1927 and 1932 there was a net decrease of municipal plants of 539, more than 20%. In Illinois, 149 municipal plants have been abandoned, and only 58 or 60 are now in existence.

"Notwithstanding the exaggerated statements of municipal ownership promoters, the figures of the Federal Power Commission show that the average rate charged by municipal plants for 40 kilowatt and over is higher than the price charged by private plants. That is emphatically true in Illinois. Here the rates even for smaller consumption are lower than in municipal plants. For instance, the average municipal plant charge in Illinois for 25 kilowatt is $2.13, while the average charge of private companies is $2.03. In Jacksonville for the past year the charge has been $1.67, and after February 1st, will be $1.55, and for 40 kilowatt the average municipal charge is $3.27, and the average charge of private companies $3.08. The charge in Jacksonville now is $2.68 and after February 1st will be $2.46. It is unfortunate that citizens do not understand rates and rate making. Irrespective of what we pay for electricity, most of us want lower rates. It probably will be astonishing to most citizens to know that Jacksonville has the lowest rate of any city of its size in the state.

"Bills for residence use in Jacksonville in 1934 amounted to $92,628.00. If the 1921 rates had been in effect, the bills would have been $199,386.00. The increased volume of electricity enabled these reductions to be made. Electric refrigeration, toasters, carpet cleaners, irons and electrical appliances have increased the volume.

What would happen to the customers who are served by the municipal plant which has only one source of power supply, and where would the money come from to repair the damage?

"If we must spend money should it not be expended for improvements to our water plant and a larger supply of water? We have plenty of electricity with good service and fair rates. We have an inadequate water supply and excessive rates.

"There has not been an increase in electric rates in Jacksonville since the war times. Quite the contrary, the rates have steadily decreased—more than 50% since 1923—and further reductions are imminent. No increase can be made by the private utility company without a public hearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission. On the other hand, a municipal rate can be changed by the city council without a hearing or ceremony, and no court or regulatory body can interfere with such municipal rates. Who knows more about electric rates and the science of rate making—a city council or a staff of rate experts who make their work a life study?

"Jacksonville's own experience with its water plant condemns the pending proposal. The rates are the highest in the state, and notwithstanding that fact, the city taxes are as high as the law permits. The plant has been built and the money spent, and the plant is run down and there is no money for rehabilitation."

If your car is a cold-weather bronco, head for the Orange and Black Shield and get a tankful of the new Phillips 66 Poly Gas.

It costs nothing extra, but what a difference! You touch the starter any time, and your icy motor "snaps out of it" instantly. Warm-up is so fast that there is hardly a trace of coughing or sputtering. No bucking or stalling. Just a smooth flow of sweet power that, for a cold motor, is surprising and uncanny.

Uncanny, until you remember that the improvement in performance is the result of POLYmerization, the scientific revolution in the making of motor fuel. To high test Phillips 66, which always was a mighty good winter gas, this miracle of modern chemistry adds a rich supply of extra heat units.

So starting in freezing weather is lightning-fast. Acceleration is far more flashing. Power and mileage are both increased with minimized use of the choke. If there is any motor fuel anywhere to equal Phillips 66 Poly Gas . . . at the price . . . our Testing Laboratory hasn't found it.

Municipal Plants Mostly Liability, Bellatti Declares

Attorney in Kiwanis Club Talk Points to Rates Now in Effect

Asserting that statistics show most municipal light plants are failures and declaring that Jacksonville has the lowest electric rates of any city of its size in Illinois, Attorney Walter Bellatti addressed members of the local Kiwanis club at its meeting here yesterday. Mr. Bellatti's address followed the talk of last week when Alex Van Praag of Decatur spoke at the Kiwanis meeting in favor of a municipal plant.

Mr. Bellatti spoke in part as follows:

"The average citizen spends only $1.00 out of each $100.00 in his budget for electricity. The average cost of living is 35% higher than the pre-war level, while the cost of electricity is 42% lower, and in Jacksonville the reduction is more than that despite a contrary belief of many citizens who do not take the trouble to investigate.

"On the whole, municipal plants have never been successful. Between the year 1927 and 1932 there was a net decrease of municipal plants of 539, more than 20%. In Illinois, 149 municipal plants have been abandoned, and only 58 or 60 are now in existence.

"Notwithstanding the exaggerated statements of municipal ownership promoters, the figures of the Federal Power Commission show that the average rate charged by municipal plants for 40 kilowatt and over is higher than the price charged by private plants. That is emphatically true in Illinois. Here the rates even for smaller consumption are lower than in municipal plants. For instance, the average municipal plant charge in Illinois for 25 kilowatt is $2.13, while the average charge of private companies is $2.03. In Jacksonville for the past year the charge has been $1.67, and after February 1st, will be $1.55, and for 40 kilowatt the average municipal charge is $3.27, and the average charge of private companies $3.08. The charge in Jacksonville now is $2.68 and after February 1st will be $2.48. It is unfortunate that citizens do not understand rates and rate making. Irrespective of what we pay for electricity, most of us want lower rates. It probably will be astonishing to most citizens to know that Jacksonville has the lowest rate of any city of its size in the state.

"Bills for residence use in Jacksonville in 1934 amounted to $92,628.00. If the 1921 rates had been in effect, the bills would have been $199,386.00. The increased volume of electricity enabled these reductions to be made. Electric refrigeration, toasters, carpet cleaners, irons and electrical appliances have increased the volume.

"It is the unanimous decision of all courts and commissions that rates cannot be charged on watered stock. The amount of stock or bonds issued by a private utility has no relation to rate making, and statements made by municipal followers to the contrary are erroneous.

"We know that political bodies do not manage business as carefully and successfully as a privately conducted enterprise. There are indeed, few exceptions. There is nothing in the Ordinance which will remove this enterprise from politics. On the contrary, the road is open, and even inviting for political manipulation.

"If the proposed plant runs to full capacity it can only serve one-half the electricity which is being used by Jacksonville citizens. Some of the outlying streets and districts will not be served. Suppose we have another severe sleet storm (the last one cost the local company approximately $30,000.00). What would happen to the customers who are served by the municipal plant which has only one source of power supply, and where would the money come from to repair the damage?

"If we must spend money should it not be expended for improvements to our water plant and a larger supply of water? We have plenty of electricity with good service and fair rates. We have an inadequate water supply and excessive rates.

"There has not been an increase in electric rates in Jacksonville since the war times. Quite the contrary, the rates have steadily decreased—more than 50% since 1923—and further reductions are imminent. No increase can be made by the private utility company without a public hearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission. On the other hand, a municipal rate can be changed by the city council without a hearing or ceremony, and no court or regulatory body can interfere with such municipal rates. Who knows more about electric rates and the science of rate making—a city council or a staff of rate experts who make their work a life study?

"Jacksonville's own experience with its water plant condemns the pending proposal. The rates are the highest in the state, and notwithstanding that fact, the city taxes are as high as the law permits. The plant has been built and the money spent, and the plant is run down and there is no money for rehabilitation."

LITERBERRY CLUB MEETS AT BEAVERS RESIDENCE THURSDAY

Literberry, Jan. 16.—The regular meeting of the Woman's Club was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. R. Beavers. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Dorothy Guy, who also had charge of the business session.

Plans were made for a rock and bridge party to be held at the school house on Friday evening, January 31. A number of committees were named as follows:

General committee: Mrs. Virgie Stewart, Mrs. Lillian Barber and Mrs. Freda Beavers. Music, Mrs. Eula Stanley and Mrs. Lillian Barber. Decorations, Miss Lora Petefish, Mrs. Nona Stice and Mrs. Edith Crum. Serving, Mrs. Mae Dinwiddie, Mrs. Jean Petefish, and Mrs. Lela Daniels. Coffee, Mrs. Edna Dunlap, Mrs. Mae Dinwiddie and Mrs. Wilma Petefish. Table and chair committee, V. C. Casteel, B. A. Stewart and J. R. Beavers.

The meeting was then turned over to the program leader, Mrs. Edna Dunlap, who gave an interesting paper on the subject, "Child Welfare." Roll call was answered by thirteen members. One guest, Mrs. John Decker was also present.

At the close of the meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments.

News Notes

Miss Lora Petefish is confined to her home by illness.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!

Ever since Tom was that big I've been distilling—

and here's our own Family's Whiskey

Yes sir, 43 years is what you might call a pretty long-drawn-out spell of whiskey making, but that's what it is—43 years. As a matter of fact, even before Tom was born, I was in the whiskey business—doing this and that about the distillery, and learning from my dad all the things that go to the making of whiskey that's got the smoothness and good taste that everybody's after. I don't wonder at it giving Pete Miller a chuckle when he sees my boys all grown up and working along with me on our Family's Whiskey. But Pete can laugh if he wants—Those boys of mine are just as much responsible as me for making our Family's Whiskey the mildest, tastiest whiskey Pete Miller and I guess anybody else ever got a swallow of.

English Money Not Responsible--Morgan

Washington—(AP)—Resentment at what he said was an insinuation that "we were bought into the war with English money" was expressed by J. P. Morgan today at the senate investigation of war-time finance.

Chuckling but nonetheless positive in his assertion, the elderly financier swung upon Senator Clark (D-Mo) with this:

"You are saying that we were bought into the war with English money and I don't like the insinuation."

An investigator for Clark and the other committee members had just contended that this government, before entering the world conflict, tried to keep American banks liquid and ready for war but not to stop trade with the allies.

Morgan puffed furiously at his pipe as he once again disputed the committee's view that American interest in trade with the allies, rather than submarines, led this country into the war.

14 Natives Killed By Big Bombs

Heavy Charges Dropped in Court of Mercy Unity at Waldia, Destroying Entire Town; Ask League Aid

BRITISH OFFICER SAFE

(Copyright, 1936, by the A.P.)

Addis Ababa—An Ethiopian government communique said today a Red Cross unit headed by the British Major G. Burgoyne at Walda, 90 miles north of Dessye, was destroyed in an Italian aerial bombardment and 14 natives were killed.

"Half the town of Waldia was destroyed by fire" the Communique reported. "Seven women and seven old men were killed."

The aerial attack took place Wednesday, the government's announcement said, at the town midway between Dessye, field headquarters of Emperor Haile Selassie, and Makale, forward point of the Italian northern front.

The Communique said, "Thirty-five persons were wounded, mostly women and children.

"Three Caproni planes made the raid. Six big bombs, of 330 pounds each, were dropped in the court of the Red Cross unit which was plainly marked with the Red Cross insignia.

"Tents and surgical instruments were destroyed.

"A British ambulance unit from Dessye is going to the rescue."

Later the British major telegraphed the Red Cross headquarters here: "Wake up Geneva. It is evident that the Italians are making special targets of Red Crosses."

Major Burgoyne also said: "The native town was heavily bombarded for 70 minutes and 14 women and children were killed."

The British officer, who apparently was not hurt, was transporting tents and hospital supplies by mule convoy.

Major Gerald Burgoyne came to Ethiopia after the conflict arose between Italy and this empire, hoping to be appointed military instructor to Crown Prince Asfa Wosan.

The British legation, however, opposed any participation by him in Ethiopian military affairs, so he joined the Red Cross.

Retzlaff Advised To Go In And Slug Joe

Advice Also Was Given To Other Victims of Brown Bomber

Chicago—(AP)—Joe Louis sat around today waiting for the call to action, while his foe of tomorrow night in the Chicago stadium, Charley Retzlaff, sat and listened to a familiar refrain.

It goes something like this: "The first guy who goes right out there and slugs with Louis will beat him."

Whether there is anything to the advice remains to be determined. The refrain was sung to Primo Carnera, King Levinsky, Max Baer and Paulino Uzcudun. They either forgot all about it upon taking a look at the Brown Bomber's dead pan or didn't take much stock, for none rushed out to slug. What happened to the quartet, and a number of others, is well known.

Retzlaff's advisers sought to convince the North Dakota farmer that his only chance with Louis lay in making a fight of it. He, like Louis, was finished today with the physical part of training for the 15 round engagement, but the campaign to get Retzlaff steamed up and keep him that way was to last until fight time.

55 Million Taken Out of Escrow

Fail To Force Packers To Turn Money Back to Farmers in Action Before U. S. Court in Chicago

PETITION IS DENIED

Chicago—(AP)—The return of AAA processing taxes which five Chicago packing houses and one grain processor put into escrow, while fighting the farm measure in court, was ordered today by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Carl Perkins, special attorney for the treasury, said he was unable to estimate how much of the $55,000,000 on deposit in Chicago was covered in the ruling.

Two of the so-called "big three" of the Chicago meat industry won refunds of their millions—Armour and Co. and Thomas E. Wilson and Co. The others were Oscar Mayer and Co., P. Brennan and Co., Miller and Hart and the B. A. Eckert Milling company.

The millions piled up, on deposit, after the packers won temporary injunctions some months ago restraining the government from collecting.

An attempt to force the packers to disburse the money to farmers who produced the livestock was made in today's hearing but failed.

For this purpose, an attorney representing E. E. Matteson, a Ladora, Ia., farmer, and also representing Rice Brothers, a Chicago commission house, asked permission to file an intervening petition requiring the packers to bring their books to court.

The petition claimed that the processors did not bear the brunt of the processing taxes, but instead deducted them from the price paid to the farmers.

The judge, however, declined to decide who actually was taxed, remarking that he could not "act as an economist."

"I don't wish to get a lot of people thinking they will get something, when they wont," he said.

"I suppose, next, the man who bought the bacon will come to court, claiming it was he who paid the taxes."

The judge said his ruling covered all the cases in his court and those before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

THIS SHOWS THE WILKEN FAMILY OVER AT THE MILLER PLACE

I remember clear as anything what I was saying that day when they took this snap of us. We had met up with Pete Miller on his place and he was remarking about me having been distilling whiskey ever since he could remember. And I was saying yes Pete—ever since Tom was that big—and I'm showing Pete with my hand how big Tom was. Tom's my son-in-law. Harry E. Wilken, Sr.

Ever since Tom was that big I've been distilling—

and here's our own Family's Whiskey

Yes sir, 43 years is what you might call a pretty long-drawn-out spell of whiskey making, but that's what it is—43 years. As a matter of fact, even before Tom was born, I was in the whiskey business—doing this and that about the distillery, and learning from my dad all the things that go to the making of whiskey that's got the smoothness and good taste that everybody's after. I don't wonder at it giving Pete Miller a chuckle when he sees my boys all grown up and working along with me on our Family's Whiskey. But Pete can laugh if he wants—Those boys of mine are just as much responsible as me for making our Family's Whiskey the mildest, tastiest whiskey Pete Miller and I guess anybody else ever got a swallow of. 55 Million Taken Out of Escrow

Fail To Force Packers To Turn Money Back to Farmers in Action Before U. S. Court in Chicago

PETITION IS DENIED

Chicago—(AP)—The return of AAA processing taxes which five Chicago packing houses and one grain processor put into escrow, while fighting the farm measure in court, was ordered today by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Carl Perkins, special attorney for the treasury, said he was unable to estimate how much of the $55,000,000 on deposit in Chicago was covered in the ruling.

Two of the so-called "big three" of the Chicago meat industry won refunds of their millions—Armour and Co. and Thomas E. Wilson and Co. The others were Oscar Mayer and Co., P. Brennan and Co., Miller and Hart and the B. A. Eckert Milling company.

The millions piled up, on deposit, after the packers won temporary injunctions some months ago restraining the government from collecting.

An attempt to force the packers to disburse the money to farmers who produced the livestock was made in today's hearing but failed.

For this purpose, an attorney representing E. E. Matteson, a Ladora, Ia., farmer, and also representing Rice Brothers, a Chicago commission house, asked permission to file an intervening petition requiring the packers to bring their books to court.

The petition claimed that the processors did not bear the brunt of the processing taxes, but instead deducted them from the price paid to the farmers.

The judge, however, declined to decide who actually was taxed, remarking that he could not "act as an economist."

"I don't wish to get a lot of people thinking they will get something, when they wont," he said.

"I suppose, next, the man who bought the bacon will come to court, claiming it was he who paid the taxes."

The judge said his ruling covered all the cases in his court and those before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Swine Market Is 5 To 10 Cents Off

Chicago, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Declining pork prices and liberal receipts compared with a year ago gave the hog market a weak tone today and prices, after early steadiness, closed 5 to 10 cents lower, with spots 15 cents off.

Shippers paid steady prices, the extreme top touching $10.05 early, but the market slid off when the demand had been satisfied. Hogs are still above the level that prevailed just before announcement of the Supreme Court's AAA ruling and pork quotations in wholesale markets have dropped 4 to 5 cents per pound and more.

Today's hog run was 20,000, which was less than advance estimates and well below a week ago but 6,000 more than year ago receipts.

Best cattle were mostly steady, medium weight topping at $14.25. The market for other kinds was very uneven. aFt lambs lost 25 to 35 cents. Practical top to outsiders for native and fed western lambs was $10.65.

Late Rallies In Wheat Market

By John P. Boughan,
Associated Press Market Editor.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Late rallies of wheat prices today, establishing moderate net gains, resulted more from paucity of speculative offerings than from any aggressive demand.

There was some mill buying of wheat futures, and the point received emphasis that flour demand might unexpectedly revive, as stocks are low. Most of the time, however, the wheat market backed and filled within narrow limits in a desultory trade slightly below $1.00 a bushel for May.

Wheat closed firm at around the day's top, May $1.00¼-⅜, corn unchanged to ¼ up, May 60, oats also unchanged to ¼ higher, and provisions unchanged to 27 cents down.

Acting as a drag on wheat values was the fact that flour business remained persistently on a hand-to-mouth basis, and that beneficial snowfalls in Nebraska were reported as well as optimistic estimates of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas crop prospects. Besides, wheat export takings were estimated as totaling but 500,000 bushels, the Canadian government board furnishing supplies at steady prices. Traders were little impressed by reasons given for transient firmness of Liverpool quotations —namely, that Australian shippers had raised prices an dthat there were further adverse reports of crop conditions in France.

Individual Stocks Show Strength

By Frank MacMillen

New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A fair scattering of individual issues pushed their heads above the crowd in the stock market today.

Utilities, steel, metals and a number of specialties werer the standouts, while the rest of the list trod a rather uninspiring measure.

The closing tone was a little better than steady, except for the oils and a few others where profit taking was in evidence.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .2 of a point at 57.7, airgely propelled by the .6 of a point lift in the 15 utilities to a new 1935-36 high of 47.2.

Of the remaining components, the 30 industrials edged .1 of a point ahead, and the 15 rails were level.

Transfers on the stock exchange came to 3,124,491 shares.

American Telephone took off on a brisk flight to new 1935-36 highs. It was up 2¼ points at one time at 161½, but failed to hold maximum altitude, closing at 160¾.

During the day, its affiliate, New York Telephone Co. reported a gain of 1,742 stations from January 1 to January 14, compared with a loss of 1,619 in the same period last year.

With one or two exceptions, the silver issues improved along with other non-ferrous metal stocks despite a cut of 1 cent in the New York price of bar silver to 48¾ cents an ounce, following an earlier reduciton in London.

Phillips Petroleum managed to edge ahead wehn an extra dividend of 25 cents was declared in the face of some irregularity of the oil group.

Swine Market Is 5 To 10 Cents Off

Chicago, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Declining pork prices and liberal receipts compared with a year ago gave the hog market a weak tone today and prices, after early steadiness, closed 5 to 10 cents lower, with spots 15 cents off.

Shippers paid steady prices, the extreme top touching $10.05 early, but the market slid off when the demand had been satisfied. Hogs are still above the level that prevailed just before announcement of the Supreme Court's AAA ruling and pork quotations in wholesale markets have dropped 4 to 5 cents per pound and more.

Today's hog run was 20,000, which was less than advance estimates and well below a week ago but 6,000 more than year ago receipts.

Best cattle were mostly steady, medium weight topping at $14.25. The market for other kinds was very uneven. aFt lambs lost 25 to 35 cents. Practical top to outsiders for native and fed westecn lambs was $10.65.

Late Rallies In Wheat Market

By John P. Boughan,
Associated Press Market Editor.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Late rallies of wheat prices today, establishing moderate net gains, resulted more from paucity of speculative offerings than from any aggressive demand.

There was some mill buying of wheat futures, and the point received emphasis that flour demand might unexpectedly revive, as stocks are low. Most of the time, however, the wheat market backed and filled within narrow limits in a desultory trade slightly below $1.00 a bushel for May.

Wheat closed firm at around the day's top, May $1.00¼-⅜, corn unchanged to ¼ up, May 60, oats also unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions unchanged to 27 cents down.

Acting as a drag on wheat values was the fact that flour business remained persistently on a hand-to-mouth basis, and that beneficial snowfalls in Nebraska were reported as well as optimistic estimates of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas crop prospects. Besides, wheat export takings were estimated as totaling but 500,000 bushels, the Canadian government board furnishing supplies at steady prices. Traders were little impressed by reasons given for transient firmness of Liverpool quotations —namely, that Australian shippers had raised prices an dthat there were further adverse reports of crop conditions in France.

Individual Stocks Show Strength

By Frank MacMillen

New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A fair scattering of individual issues pushed their heads above the crowd in the stock market today.

Utilities, steel, metals and a number of specialties werer the standouts, while the rest of the list trod a rather uninspiring measure.

The closing tone was a little better than steady, except for the oils and a few others where profit taking was in evidence.

During most of the session leadership rested with the steels and miscellaneous specialized industrials, such as Newport Industries, American Chain, Greyhound and Pressed Steel Car.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .2 of a point at 57.7, alrgely propelled by the .6 of a point lift in the 15 utilities to a new 1935-36 high of 47.2.

Of the remaining components, the 30 industrials edged .1 of a point ahead, and the 15 rails were level.

Transfers on the stock exchange came to 3,124,491 shares.

American Telephone took off on a brisk flight to new 1935-36 highs. It was up 2½ points at one time at 161½, but failed to hold maximum altitude, closing at 160½.

During the day, its affiliate, New York Telephone Co. reported a gain of 1,742 stations from January 1 to January 14, compared with a loss of 1,619 in the same period last year.

With one or two exceptions, the silver issues improved along with other non-ferrous metal stocks despite a cut of 1 cent in the New York price of bar silver to 48¾ cents an ounce, following an earlier reduciton in London.

Phillips Petroleum managed to edge ahead wehn an extra dividend of 25 cents was declared in the face of some irregularity of the oil group.

U. S. Court Refuses to Give Writ

DECIDE DURING LUNCH

Washington —(AP)— The Supreme Court refused today to save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the electric chair tomorrow night.

Apparently the only hope of the convicted kidnap-murderer of the Lindbergh baby lies in a possible reprieve by Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey.

SAW RANSOM MONEY

Chicago—(AP)—A Chicago Bridewell prisoner's story that an "Adolph Blaustein" and a "Fred Menk" whom he met in 1934 claimed they had $22,000 of the Lindbergh baby ransom money was investigated today by representatives of Gov. Henry Horner who indicated the questioning was asked by New Jersey officials.

Attorney Bernard Finnigan, representing the prisoner, Stephen Spitz, then announced he would communicate immediately with Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, asking him to have Gov. Horner free Spitz to go to Trenton, N. J.

Spitz, 52 years old, was sentenced for obtaining money under false pretenses and his term expires at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Hauptmann's petition for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution had been filed shortly after noon by his attorneys.

The decision to deny the petition was agreed upon while the justices ate their lunch from 2 to 2:30 p. m.

Chief Justice Hughes announced the verdict to a hushed audience as soon as the court convened at 2:33 p. m.—three minutes late.

Apparently the discussion had extended overtime.

The chief justice said merely that the petition for a writ of habeas corpus was denied. Court observers said that action in effect included the petition for a stay of execution.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution was presented in open court shortly after it met at noon.

The motion was made by Neil Burkinshaw, one of Hauptmann's attorneys.

"I ask leave of court to present an original petition for a writ of habeas corpus and a petition for a stay of judgment," he said.

The entire proceedings lasted only a few seconds.

Only favorable action by the supreme court or a reprieve by Gov. Harold Hoffman of New Jersey seemed possible to save the Bronx carpenter from the scheduled electrocution.

The petition presented by Burkinshaw contended among other things that "in general the jurors were exposed to an overwhelming mob spirit during the entire duration of the trial both during and between sessions of the court, all of which was subversive of the right of the petitioner to a fair and impartial trial."

The allegations were similar to those presented previously to the court in an unsuccessful effort to obtain a review of Hauptmann's conviction. They also were along the same general lines as those presented to Justice J. Warren Davis of the federal circuit court of appeals at Trenton who denied the writ of habeas corpus.

The petition was signed by Hauptmann and Attorneys Lloyd Fisher, Frederick A. Pope, Egbert Rosecrans, Nugent Dodds and Burkinshaw.

The petition was filed against Colonel Mark Kimberling, "principal keeper" of the New Jersey state prison at Trenton where Hauptmann is awaiting execution.

Rap Price Schedule Allowed to Dealers

37 Firms and Individuals Seek Court Writ

East St. Louis, Ill.—(AP)—Thirty-seven livestock firms and individuals have filed suit to enjoin the government from prosecuting St. Louis Livestock Exchange members for adopting a schedule of commission rates and charges not approved by Secretary Wallace.

The suit, filed yesterday, questions constitutionality of the Packers and Stockyards act of 1921 under which the secretary of agriculture fixes rates and charges.

The livestock dealers rejected a schedule submitted by Secretary Wallace and substituted one of their own yesterday. They charged the government schedule would leave no margin of profit.

State Senate Votes Relief Funds Early Today Unanimously

County Relief Officials Are Told Not to Make Any Committments

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Governor Horner today signed the bill appropriating $2,500,000 of treasury funds as a stop gap means of permitting the Illinois Emergency Relief commission to operate during the last half of January.

The emergency bill was signed ten hours after the senate passed it at an after-midnight session.

The appropriation gave fresh funds to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission's stations, which were ordered to open as usual today. They had faced the prospect of closing after January 15 because of a deficiency in funds.

Passed by a 45 to 0 vote at the midnight session, the measure was rushed to Governor Horner for his signature today so that the new funds from the state treasury will be made available at once.

Meanwhile the legislature, which will convene again next week in regular session, plans to work out a definite plan to provide relief funds until May 1.

Also approved at the midnight session were three bills appropriating $122,000 for expenses of the second special session, which was called for relief legislation only.

Although relief stations were open, Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC, in Chicago said he instructed county relief officials not to make any commitments of funds pending instructions.

"Allocations totaling $3,074,725 approved by the relief commission Monday will be released immediately when we receive notice that the appropriation bill has been signed by Governor Horner," Lyons said.

An unexpected number of senators turned out for the legislation at midnight. Nine of those present were among the more than 20 who had been given permission to leave affirmative votes and not attend the session.

COURTNEY TO BE OUT OF PARTY LINE-UP

Leaders Refuse To Recognize Rumor, However

Chicago—(AP)—Reports that State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney will be cropped by the powerful Chicago Democratic organization sounded to Chicagoans today like the thunder of a major political storm.

"Authoritative sources" were quoted as saying that Mayor Edward J. Kelly and County Chairman Patrick A. Nash, twin generals of the Democratic machine, had "passed the word" that Courtney was not to be endorsed for re-election in 1936.

None of the three—Kelly, Nash or Courtney—would recognize the reports but there was undisguised excitement in the Democratic ranks.

Courtney, 41 years old, has been called "decidedly independent of the party chiefs since he took office in 1932.

Women have, on the average, larger feet than their mothers and grandmothers. Size 2½, which was fairly common 30 years ago, is not stocked now, the average size today being 5.

Raising Chickens for early marketing is usually a profitable venture. True, is requires some work, but it pays. To get the best out of it, an early start should be made.

WHY GO INTO DEBT?

The advocates of a municipal plant want to borrow $420,000 to build what we already have.

This $420,000 debt will have to be paid back out of electric rates charged by the municipal plant.

Only HALF the population can be served by the municipal plant as proposed.

Therefore, half the population will have to pay an electric rate that will pay off a debt of $420,000, plus interest.

We believe that municipal rates would have to be higher than those we now pay in order to meet the charges for operating expense, interest, and to pay off the bonds issued to build a municipal plant.

Why Go Into Debt for Something We Do Not Need?

U. S. Court Refuses to Give Writ

DECIDE DURING LUNCH

Washington —(AP)— The Supreme Court refused today to save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the electric chair tomorrow night.

SAW RANSOM MONEY

Chicago—(AP)—A Chicago Bridewell prisoner's story that an "Adolph Blaustein" and a "Fred Menk" whom he met in 1934 claimed they had $22,000 of the Lindbergh baby ransom money was investigated today by representatives of Gov. Henry Horner who indicated the questioning was asked by New Jersey officials.

Attorney Bernard Finnigan, representing the prisoner, Stephen Spitz, then announced he would communicate immediately with Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, asking him to have Gov. Horner free Spitz to go to Trenton, N. J.

Spitz, 52 years old, was sentenced for obtaining money under false pretenses and his term expires at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Hauptmann's petition for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution had been filed shortly after noon by his attorneys.

The decision to deny the petition was agreed upon while the justices ate their lunch from 2 to 2:30 p. m.

Chief Justice Hughes announced the verdict to a hushed audience as soon as the court convened at 2:33 p. m.—three minutes late.

Apparently the discussion had extended overtime.

The chief justice said merely that the petition for a writ of habeas corpus was denied. Court observers said that action in effect included the petition for a stay of execution.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution was presented in open court shortly after it met at noon.

"You may submit the papers," was the only comment of Chief Justice Hughes.

The motion was made by Neil Burkinshaw, one of Hauptmann's attorneys.

"I ask leave of court to present an original petition for a writ of habeas corpus and a petition for a stay of judgment," he said.

The entire proceedings lasted only a few seconds.

Only favorable action by the supreme court or a reprieve by Gov. Harold Hoffman of New Jersey seemed possible to save the Bronx carpenter from the scheduled electrocution.

The petition presented by Burkinshaw contended among other things that "in general the jurors were exposed to an overwhelming mob spirit during the entire duration of the trial both during and between sessions of the court, all of which was subversive of the right of the petitioner to a fair and impartial trial."

The allegations were similar to those presented previously to the court in an unsuccessful effort to obtain a review of Hauptmann's conviction. They also were along the same general lines as those presented to Justice J. Warren Davis of the federal circuit court of appeals at Trenton who denied the writ of habeas corpus.

The petition was signed by Hauptmann and Attorneys Lloyd Fisher, Frederick A. Pope, Egbert Rosecrans, Nugent Dodds and Burkinshaw.

Rap Price Schedule Allowed to Dealers

37 Firms and Individuals Seek Court Writ

East St. Louis, Ill.—(AP)—Thirty-seven livestock firms and individuals have filed suit to enjoin the government from prosecuting St. Louis Livestock Exchange members for adopting a schedule of commission rates and charges not approved by Secretary Wallace.

The suit, filed yesterday, questions constitutionality of the Packers and Stockyards act of 1921 under which the secretary of agriculture fixes rates and charges.

The livestock dealers rejected a schedule submitted by Secretary Wallace and substituted one of their own yesterday. They charged the government schedule would leave no margin of profit.

State Senate Votes Relief Funds Early Today Unanimously

County Relief Officials Are Told Not to Make Any Committments

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Governor Horner today signed the bill appropriating $2,500,000 of treasury funds as a stop gap means of permitting the Illinois Emergency Relief commission to operate during the last half of January.

The emergency bill was signed ten hours after the senate passed it at an after-midnight session.

The appropriation gave fresh funds to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission's stations, which were ordered to open as usual today. They had faced the prospect of closing after January 15 because of a deficiency in funds.

Passed by a 45 to 0 vote at the midnight session, the measure was rushed to Governor Horner for his signature today so that the new funds from the state treasury will be made available at once.

Meanwhile the legislature, which will convene again next week in regular session, plans to work out a definite plan to provide relief funds until May 1.

Also approved at the midnight session were three bills appropriating $122,000 for expenses of the second special session, which was called for relief legislation only.

Although relief stations were open, Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC, in Chicago said he instructed county relief officials not to make any commitments of funds pending instructions.

"Allocations totaling $3,074,725 approved by the relief commission Monday will be released immediately when we receive notice that the appropriation bill has been signed by Governor Horner," Lyons said.

An unexpected number of senators turned out for the legislation at midnight. Nine of those present were among the more than 20 who had been given permission to leave affirmative votes and not attend the session.

COURTNEY TO BE OUT OF PARTY LINE-UP

Leaders Refuse To Recognize Rumor, However

Chicago—(AP)—Reports that State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney will be cropped by the powerful Chicago Democratic organization sounded to Chicagoans today like the thunder of a major political storm.

"Authoritative sources" were quoted as saying that Mayor Edward J. Kelly and County Chairman Patrick A. Nash, twin generals of the Democratic machine, had "passed the word" that Courtney was not to be endorsed for re-election in 1936.

None of the three—Kelly, Nash or Courtney—would recognize the reports but there was undisguised excitement in the Democratic ranks.

WHY GO INTO DEBT?

The advocates of a municipal plant want to borrow $420,000 to build what we already have.

This $420,000 debt will have to be paid back out of electric rates charged by the municipal plant.

Only HALF the population can be served by the municipal plant as proposed.

Therefore, half the population will have to pay an electric rate that will pay off a debt of $420,000, plus interest.

We believe that municipal rates would have to be higher than those we now pay in order to meet the charges for operating expense, interest, and to pay off the bonds issued to build a municipal plant.

Why Go Into Debt for Something We Do Not Need?

J. H. Dial Retires From Active Work With Phone Co.

Ends 20 Years Service Here; To Act In Advisory Capacity

A dinner party honoring J. H. Dial, operating vice-president of the Illinois Telephone company, who is retiring from active duty, was given by employes, officials and guests of the company last night at the American Legion Memorial Home. About eighty persons attended the party.

The occasion marked the retirement of Mr. Dial after twenty years of service for the company. Altho retiring from active service for the telephone company Mr. Dial remains in an advisory capacity with the organization. During his affiliation with the company Mr. Dial has served as secretary-auditor and general manager and at the time of retirement was operating vice-president.

His service with the company dates back to 1916, when he became secretary-auditor of the Illinois Telephone company. At that time he resigned as principal of the Murrayville schools, where his service numbers 17 years, to take the position here.

At the time he became affiliated with the company here it had 5,200 telephones and 18 exchanges. Today it has 8,000 phones and 17 exchanges. At one time the number of telephones reached a total of 10,000, the depression tending to lower the stations following the peak years.

In 1921 Mr. Dial became general manager of the company, and later that year the Bell Telephone properties were acquired by the local company. Thru purchase, the exchanges at Literberry, Winchester, Bluffs, Meredosia, Pleasant Plains and New Berlin were added. Other exchanges in addition to the local exchange include Alexander, Carrollton, Greenfield, Hillview, Manchester, Murrayville, Patterson, Roodhouse, White Hall and Woodson.

Mr. Dial has guided the telephone service of three counties thru many strenuous years, and has seen the firm grow and expand under his management. Though busy with the affairs of the company, he has found time to take an active part in the civic life of the community, and has worked continuously for the best interests of Jacksonville.

The dinner party last night in honor of Mr. Dial was arranged by a committee composed of R. A. Saylor, Miss Agnes Teeley, Miss Zula Groves and Mrs. Lulu McKee. The program included mass singing, a reading by Juanita Kinnett and concertina selections by George Cutshall. Letters from the local Chamber of Commerce and Rotary club were read last evening the letters expressing appreciation to Mr. Dial for services rendered during past years. A basket of roses, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Danner, was presented to Mr. Dial. Mr. Danner was formerly employed by the local company.

Guests at the meeting included R. B. Still of Bloomington, general manager of the Illinois Telephone company; Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Insley of Streator; Mayor and Mrs. F. J. Blackburn, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Herron, of Bushnell, and Engineer O. R. Roach, of Bloomington.

Light Plant Issue Discussed Thursday

Fourth Ward Voters Hear Speakers Speak For City Project

A large group of citizens of the fourth ward listened intently to a discussion of the municipal light plant in the Washington school auditorium last night. Harlan Williamson acted as chairman for the evening. He opened the meeting with an address in which he stressed the inconsistency of the opposition in attempting to persuade the voters that the light plant would constitute the debt when the ordinance itself specifically set forth that the issuance of the securities could not constitute a debt. He also asked the question why the local company filed a petition for a rate increase of three per cent last summer if its policy was to reduce rates and why they withdrew it after the passage of the ordinance for a light plant here.

He then introduced Orville N. Foreman who discussed the history of regulation of utilities and asserted that regulation before commerce commissions had proven a failure. He stated that many eminent students of the utility question had unanimously taken the position that regulation can only be accomplished by competition. Municipal ownership is the answer to the situation in Jacksonville according to Mr. Foreman, who reminded the voters present that municipal ownership of utilities had been long desired in Jacksonville and that this project was not a new one. He further argued that Jacksonville had never had as good an opportunity to get a municipal plant as it now has and that in all probability it would never have as splendid an opportunity again.

Alex Van Praag, Jr., consulting engineer for the project next addressed the meeting. He gave an accounting of a number of municipal plants constructed in Illinois under his supervision and answered in detail criticism of the proposed municipal light plant made at the recent debate at Illinois College and appearing in advertisements of the opposition. Particular emphasis was placed by the speaker on the competitive feature of the proposed plant. He stressed the fact that the service of the municipal plant must be better than that of the private utility and that its rates must be lower for otherwise it could obtain no customers. He defended the present waterworks of the city and the many services rendered by it to the city were brought out in detail by him. Mr. Van Praag making a comparison of electric light, gas and water rates over a period of years asserted that there was a satisfactory explanation of the relatively high water rates in Jacksonville although he condemned increases in domestic gas rates.

Another mass meeting of the Jacksonville Municipal Light Plant League will be held in the court house tonight at 7:30. Principal speakers will be Hon. Herbert Thompson, of Muscatine, Iowa, Hon. L. H. Jonas of Centralia, Illinois, and Mr. Van Praag, consulting engineer for the local project. Mr. Thompson is the former mayor of Muscatine and led the fight for municipal ownership there. Mr. Jonas as city attorney at Centralia, headed the campaign which resulted in a decisive vote for the municipal plant there about a year ago.

Brotherhood Of Winchester Plans Tree Program

City-Wide Planting Planned By Scott Group; Other News Notes

Winchester, Jan. 16—The Winchester Brotherhood at a recent meeting of the organization voted to sponsor a tree planting program for the city as proposed by a committee appointed to consider such a project. The committee which is headed by Charles E. Price included Henry B. Corrie, Rev. R. L. Schwab, Albert Krueger, Roy E. Dieterle and Claude Frederick. The commitee has been in communication with a number of the leading nurseries of this section and has been quoted some very attractive prices on large quantities of trees. The plan as outlined by the committee is to enlist the co-operation of property owners and various civic organizations of the city in a city-wide tree planting program to be launched in the latter part of February.

The program has met the favorable approval of the community in general and promises to fill a long felt need. The recent destruction of many of the trees of the city by storms and from decay due to old age has detracted materially from the beauty of the residential sections and particularly the park in the center of the public square. It has been pointed out that if some steps are not taken to replace the trees which are all ready gone and those which are near deterioration and in fact dangerous in their present condition, that it will only be a short time until the once beautiful streets of the city will be quite barren.

City Council Adopts Appropriation Bill At Thursday Meeting

Working with a bare quorum present and a mayor protem in the chair, the city council last night passed the appropriation ordinance for the coming year, carrying with it ten per cent increases in salary for city employes, gave first reading to an amendment to the ordinance governing the operation of bowling alleys, heard reports of various WPA projects, and adjourned at 8:35 p. m. after being in session only thirty-five minutes.

The appropriation ordinance passed without a word of discussion, all matters pertaining to the various departments of the city having been threshed out previous to its first reading Monday night of this week, in an adjourned meeting of a week ago.

Seeking to remove the six o'clock closing restriction on Sunday bowling, an ordinance was introduced which would make possible bowling all through the day, every day of the week. The ordinance carried an emergency clause, but because there were only five oldermen present at the meeting, and six are required to pass an emergency clause, the ordinance was laid over until the next meeting. There was no discussion of the proposed change.

Relating a conversation which he had with John R. Hoffman, manager of the Illinois Power and Light corporation, City Attorney Edward Cleary said that it had been agreed that the power corporation would transfer title to the rails now being removed from West State street to the city through a bill of sale. The rail removal project, one of the many WPA projects now underway in the city, has been going ahead, but the city has been unable to dispose of the rails because of lack of title.

A formal transfer of guaranteed title to the rails has been proposed in a document submitted by the city attorney to the power corporation. Acceptance of this proposal will clear the way for the sale of the rails for an estimated $2,500, which will be used to pay for part of the city's expense on the project.

Kenneth Stapleton, city engineer, reported on the progress of the WPA works now underway. He related that the Johnson street sewer is now within 100 feet of East State, and that all of the material for the project is on hand. The WPA has spent approximately $3,840 for labor on this project, in addition to purchasing a large amount of sewer pipe.

Car Tracks Removal.

Work on the removal of the street car rails is being carried on as well as could be expected during the cold weather, he continued, adding that all of the cement and asphalt to be purchased by the WPA is on hand. Approximately $3,700 has been spent for labor, he estimated.

About $2,280 for labor has been expended in levelling the Greek Theater, amounting to about half of the allocation, he said, and more than half of the work is completed.

Alderman W. H. Cocking, who was elected mayor-pro-tem, supplemented Stapleton's report of the tree project with an outline of the plan of operations. Men employed on this project will work through the first and third wards thoroughly, before returning to the second and fourth wards for a cleanup, Cocking stated. Stapleton reported that the workers have trimmed 103 trees, removed 27 and repaired 30 in the first ward, and invited members of the council to report trees in dangerous condition if they are on boulevards, in order to assist the tree workers in the clean-up work.

The mayor-pro-tem also reported that 100 elm trees have been donated to the city to replace trees removed. No places have been designated as yet where these trees will be planted.

The council authorized the building committee to go ahead with the installation of new doors in the fire department, at an estimated cost of $390 for each pair of doors. One pair has been installed, and two more pairs are contemplated.

The report of the treasurer, showing $4,503 in the general fund at the close of the year, and the yearly and last month health reports of the health department, were placed on file.

Present at the meeting were Alderman Cocking, Robert Weaver, John Early, Ralph Green and Ben Denny.

Jacksonville Municipal Light Plant League Has Opened New Headquarters

Due to Intense Interest Shown by Jacksonville Citizens Headquarters Have Been Established in Main Corridor of Pacific Hotel Where True Facts Can be Obtained.

In order to be in a better position to refute the many statements being circulated by the opposing faction, the Jacksonville Municipal Light Plant League welcomes any one to its headquarters who is in doubt as to the feasability of this proposition.

"If you are a citizen of Jacksonville and want to see your town grow, or if you are a tax payer and want to eventually reduce your taxes, or if you are a laboring man and want a chance to earn a living you can obtain some valuable information along these lines by paying a visit to the headquarters, room 269 Pacific Hotel, or Phone 148.

Jacksonville has not grown in the past fifty years because it has had nothing to offer factories, while cities which have municipal light plants have been in a position to obtain industries by being in a positon to offer low power rates. Jacksonville has a golden opportunity to obtain a municipal light plant, it will fulfill a crying need, it will give the poor as well as the rich lower light and power rates. The PWA loan and grant is workable, is constitutional and has been obtained by many cities. Jacksonville has everything to gain and nothing to lose; it will cost the City nothing, no taxes, no debt, no obligation and from the very beginning will be a great benefit to the community. In addition to bringing to this city the largest new enterprise of many years, it will be strictly by, of and for Jacksonville people—ownership, operation, management and benefit.

IT MEANS JACKSONVILLE MONEY STAYS IN JACKSONVILLE.

What far sighted citizen, what progressive business man, what truly public spirited civic organization can fail to grasp this chance for a greater Jacksonville. It means employment. It means wages. It means money spent with Jacksonville business men. This project is to be voted on Tuesday, January 21st.

Electricity, God's gracious gift to mankind! Without it this world would be put back thousands of years! It can be made for a fraction of a cent a kilowatt. Why should there be a monopoly when lower rates mean more users. Other cities that have municipal plants have opened up new fields, new users. There are plenty of homes here in Jacksonville that would welcome electricity. Don't deny them this privilege.

Between July and August there were 85,000 registered, but not before or since that date has that figure been equaled.

J. H. Dial Retires From Active Work With Phone Co.

Ends 20 Years Service Here; To Act In Advisory Capacity

A dinner party honoring J. H. Dial, operating vice-president of the Illinois Telephone company, who is retiring from active duty, was given by employes, officials and guests of the company last night at the American Legion Memorial Home. About eighty persons attended the party.

The occasion marked the retirement of Mr. Dial after twenty years of service for the company. Altho retiring from active service for the telephone company Mr. Dial remains in an advisory capacity with the organization. During his affiliation with the company Mr. Dial has served as secretary-auditor and general manager and at the time of retirement was operating vice-president.

His service with the company dates back to 1916, when he became secretary-auditor of the Illinois Telephone company. At that time he resigned as principal of the Murrayville schools, where his service numbers 17 years, to take the position here.

At the time he became affiliated with the company here it had 5,200 telephones and 13 exchanges. Today it has 8,000 phones and 17 exchanges. At one time the number of telephones reached a total of 10,000, the depression tending to lower the stations following the peak years.

In 1921 Mr. Dial became general manager of the company, and later that year the Bell Telephone properties were acquired by the local company. Thru purchase, the exchanges at Literberry, Winchester, Bluffs, Meredosia, Pleasant Plains and New Berlin were added. Other exchanges in addition to the local exchange include Alexander, Carrollton, Greenfield, Hillview, Manchester, Murrayville, Patterson, Roodhouse, White Hall and Woodson.

Mr. Dial has guided the telephone service of three counties thru many strenuous years, and has seen the firm grow and expand under his management. Though busy with the affairs of the company, he has found time to take an active part in the civic life of the community, and has worked continuously for the best interests of Jacksonville.

The dinner party last night in honor of Mr. Dial was arranged by a committee composed of R. A. Saylor, Miss Agnes Teefey, Miss Zula Groves and Mrs. Lulu McKee. The program included mass singing, a reading by Juanita Kinnett and concertina selections by George Cutshall. Letters from the local Chamber of Commerce and Rotary club were read last evening the letters expressing appreciation to Mr. Dial for services rendered during past years. A basket of roses, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Danner, was presented to Mr. Dial. Mr. Danner was formerly employed by the local company.

Guests at the meeting included R. B. Still of Bloomington, general manager of the Illinois Telephone company; Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Insley of Streator; Mayor and Mrs. F. J. Blackburn, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Herron, of Bushnell, and Engineer O. R. Roach, of Bloomington.

Light Plant Issue Discussed Thursday

Fourth Ward Voters Hear Speakers Speak For City Project

A large group of citizens of the fourth ward listened intently to a discussion of the municipal light plant in the Washington school auditorium last night. Harlan Williamson acted as chairman for the evening. He opened the meeting with an address in which he stressed the inconsistency of the opposition in attempting to persuade the voters that the light plant would constitute the debt when the ordinance itself specifically set forth that the issuance of the securities could not constitute a debt. He also asked the question why the local company filed a petition for a rate increase of three per cent last summer if its policy was to reduce rates and why withdrew it after the passage of the ordinance for a light plant here.

He then introduced Orville N. Foreman who discussed the history of regulation of utilities and asserted that regulation before commerce commissions had proven a failure. He stated that many eminent students of the utility question had unanimously taken the position that regulation can only be accomplished by competition. Municipal ownership is the answer to the situation in Jacksonville according to Mr. Foreman, who reminded the voters present that municipal ownership of utilities had been long desired in Jacksonville and that this project was not a new one. He further argued that Jacksonville had never had as good an opportunity to get a municipal plant as it now has and that in all probability it would never have as splendid an opportunity again.

Alex Van Praag, Jr., consulting engineer for the project next addressed the meeting. He gave an accounting of a number of municipal plants constructed in Illinois under his supervision and answered in detail criticism of the proposed municipal light plant made at the recent debate at Illinois College and appearing in advertisements of the opposition. Particular emphasis was placed by the speaker on the competitive feature of the proposed plant. He stressed the fact that the service of the municipal plant must be better than that of the private utility and that its rates must be lower for otherwise it could obtain no customers. He defended the present waterworks of the city and the many services rendered by it to the city were brought out in detail by him. Mr. Van Praag making a comparison of electric light, gas and water rates over a period of years asserted that there was a satisfactory explanation of the relatively high water rates in Jacksonville although he condemned increases in domestic gas rates.

Another mass meeting of the Jacksonville Municipal Light Plant League will be held in the court house tonight at 7:30. Principal speakers will be Hon. Herbert Thompson, of Muscatine, Iowa, Hon. L. H. Jonas of Centralia, Illinois, and Mr. Van Praag, consulting engineer for the local project. Mr. Thompson is the former mayor of Muscatine and led the fight for municipal ownership there. Mr. Jonas as city attorney at Centralia, headed the campaign which resulted in a decisive vote for the municipal plant there about a year ago.

Brotherhood Of Winchester Plans Tree Program

City-Wide Planting Planned By Scott Group; Other News Notes

Winchester, Jan. 16—The Winchester Brotherhood at a recent meeting of the organization voted to sponsor a tree planting program for the city as proposed by a committee appointed to consider such a project. The committee which is headed by Charles E. Price included Henry B. Corrie, Rev. R. L. Schwab, Albert Krueger, Roy E. Dieterle and Claude Frederick. The commitee has been in communication with a number of the leading nurseries of this section and has been quoted some very attractive prices on large quantities of trees. The plan as outlined by the committee is to enlist the co-operation of property owners and various civic organizations of the city in a city-wide tree planting program to be launched in the latter part of February.

The program has met the favorable approval of the community in general and promises to fill a long felt need. The recent destruction of many of the trees of the city by storms and from decay due to old age has detracted materially from the beauty of the residential sections and particularly the park in the center of the public square. It has been pointed out that if some steps are not taken to replace the trees which are all ready gone and those which are near deterioration and in fact dangerous in their present condition, that it will only be a short time until the once beautiful streets of the city will be quite barren.

City Council Adopts Appropriation Bill At Thursday Meeting

Working with a bare quorum present and a mayor protem in the chair, the city council last night passed the appropriation ordinance for the coming year, carrying with it ten per cent increases in salary for city employes, gave first reading to an amendment to the ordinance governing the operation of bowling alleys, heard reports of various WPA projects, and adjourned at 8:35 p. m. after being in session only thirty-five minutes.

The appropriation ordinance passed without a word of discussion, all matters pertaining to the various departments of the city having been threshed out previous to its first reading Monday night of this week, in an adjourned meeting of a week ago.

Seeking to remove the six o'clock closing restriction on Sunday bowling, an ordinance was introduced which would make possible bowling all through the day, every day of the week. The ordinance carried an emergency clause, but because there were only five oldermen present at the meeting, and six are required to pass an emergency clause, the ordinance was laid over until the next meeting. There was no discussion of the proposed change.

Relating a conversation which he had with John R. Hoffman, manager of the Illinois Power and Light corporation, City Attorney Edward Cleary said that it had been agreed that the power corporation would transfer title to the rails now being removed from West State street to the city through a bill of sale. The rail removal project, one of the many WPA projects now underway in the city, has been going ahead, but the city has been unable to dispose of the rails because of lack of title.

A formal transfer of guaranteed title to the rails has been proposed in a document submitted by the city attorney to the power corporation. Acceptance of this proposal will clear the way for the sale of the rails for an estimated $2,500, which will be used to pay for part of the city's expense on the project.

Kenneth Stapleton, city engineer, reported on the progress of the WPA works now underway. He related that the Johnson street sewer is now within 100 feet of East State, and that all of the material for the project is on hand. The WPA has spent approximately $3,840 for labor on this project, in addition to purchasing a large amount of sewer pipe.

Car Tracks Removal.

Work on the removal of the street car rails is being carried on as well as could be expected during the cold weather, he continued, adding that all of the cement and asphalt to be purchased by the WPA is on hand. Approximately $3,700 has been spent for labor, he estimated.

About $2,280 for labor has been expended in levelling the Greek Theater, amounting to about half of the allocation, he said, and more than half of the work is completed.

Alderman W. H. Cocking, who was elected mayor-pro-tem, supplemented Stapleton's report of the tree project with an outline of the plan of operations. Men employed on this project will work through the first and third wards thoroughly, before returning to the second and fourth wards for a cleanup, Cocking stated. Stapleton reported that the workers have trimmed 103 trees, removed 27 and repaired 30 in the first ward, and invited members of the council to report trees in dangerous condition if they are on boulevards, in order to assist the tree workers in the clean-up work.

The mayor-pro-tem also reported that 100 elm trees have been donated to the city to replace trees removed. No places have been designated as yet where these trees will be planted.

The council authorized the building committee to go ahead with the installation of new doors in the fire department, at an estimated cost of $390 for each pair of doors. One pair has been installed, and two more pairs are contemplated.

The report of the treasurer, showing $4,503 in the general fund at the close of the year, and the yearly and last month health reports of the health department, were placed on file.

Present at the meeting were Alderman Cocking, Robert Weaver, John Early, Ralph Green and Ben Denny.

Jacksonville Municipal Light Plant League Has Opened New Headquarters

Due to Intense Interest Shown by Jacksonville Citizens Headquarters Have Been Established in Main Corridor of Pacific Hotel Where True Facts Can be Obtained.

In order to be in a better position to refute the many statements being circulated by the opposing faction, the Jacksonville Municipal Light Plant League welcomes any one to its headquarters who is in doubt as to the feasability of this proposition.

"If you are a citizen of Jacksonville and want to see your town grow, or if you are a tax payer and want to eventually reduce your taxes, or if you are a laboring man and want a chance to earn a living you can obtain some valuable information along these lines by paying a visit to the headquarters, room 269 Pacific Hotel, or Phone 148.

Jacksonville has not grown in the past fifty years because it has had nothing to offer factories, while cities which have municipal light plants have been in a position to obtain industries by being in a positon to offer low power rates. Jacksonville has a golden opportunity to obtain a municipal light plant, it will fulfill a crying need, it will give the poor as well as the rich lower light and power rates. The PWA loan and grant is workable, is constitutional and has been obtained by many cities. Jacksonville has everything to gain and nothing to lose, it will cost the City nothing, no taxes, no debt, no obligation and from the very beginning will be a great benefit to the community. In addition to bringing to this city the largest new enterprise of many years, it will be strictly by, of and for Jacksonville people—ownership, operation, management and benefit.

IT MEANS JACKSONVILLE MONEY STAYS IN JACKSONVILLE.

What far sighted citizen, what progressive business man, what truly public spirited civic organization can fail to grasp this chance for a greater Jacksonville. It means employment. It means wages. It means money spent with Jacksonville business men. This project is to be voted on Tuesday, January 21st.

Electricity, God's gracious gift to mankind! Without it this world would be put back thousands of years! It can be made for a fraction of a cent a kilowatt. Why should there be a monopoly when lower rates mean more users. Other cities that have municipal plants have opened up new fields, new users. There are plenty of homes here in Jacksonville that would welcome electricity. Don't deny them this privilege.

N. R. S. Manager Describes Work At B. P. W. C. Meeting

Ralph H. Easley, district manager of the National Re-employment Service, addressed the Business and Professional Woman's club Thursday evening at the Peacock Inn upon "Unemployment and Vocational Guidance," emphasizing the purpose of registration, classification and recommendation to employers.

Following the supper, which was served at 6:15, the president, Miss Hester Burbridge, opened the meeting presenting Miss Edna Belle Clark, chairman of the personnel and research committee, who presided during the program.

Between July and August there were 85,000 registered, but not before or since that date has that figure been equaled.

"The office is for the use of industry and business men," said the speaker, "as well as for reference in placing individuals in public works positions."

Mr. Easley invited the co-operation of the members of the club in this enterprise, which is a permanent service.
